Arts Council of Greater Lansing's

Young Creatives Guide

2020
The Young Creatives Program has been a large part of the Arts Council’s programming over the past 6 years. Our goal is to advocate for more youth arts programming in our schools, to share artistic opportunities in our community and to bring attention to the talented students whose artistry and creativity shouldn’t go unnoticed.

The Young Creatives Guide provides young creatives, their parents and their teachers with an extensive listing of classes, camps, lectures and workshops that are produced by our wonderful arts and cultural organizations across the Capital region. We hope you will look through this guide and find what experiences are available to you!

The Young Creatives Program also includes three additional key components:

Young Creatives Grants: Grants of up to $1,500 are available to area arts and cultural organizations each year to provide scholarships or free programming for underserved youth to attend arts-related programs, camps and classes during the year.

Young Creatives Billboards: In March, during National Youth Arts Month, we showcase our Young Creatives Billboards, a campaign that celebrates the extraordinary artistic talent of area youth. Artwork of up to 10 tri-county area students are showcased on billboards placed throughout the region and highlights the importance of arts in education.

Artists-in-Residence Program: This opportunity is for students and teachers of the Lansing School District to work side-by-side with our teaching artists in selected art forms such as music, dance, theatre or the visual arts.

We hope that over the course of the next year, you will take advantage of all the creative, innovative and affordable art programs that are offered in our community!

Greenrock Writers Retreat is a 4-day camp for high school students with a passion for writing. Workshops are designed to encourage participants to view writing as both personally meaningful and pleasurable, as well as to improve student writing ability. During the four days on the MSU campus, participants will have the opportunity to meet peers from other schools around Michigan and get a taste of life on a Big Ten campus. Whatever a participant’s writing interests and goals may be—whether it is creative writing or argumentative essays—Greenrock has something to offer. Each participant will also get a sense for the publishing process and even become a published author in Greenrock’s own anthology.

Spartan Writing Camp has invited elementary and middle school writers to explore their love of writing with countless opportunities to write about the thoughts, ideas and experiences that move them. Camp instructors, who are experienced teachers and Red Cedar Writing teacher consultants, help students nurture and develop the writer within, using Michigan State’s campus for inspiration. Each summer campers search for stories and capture memories on visits to the Red Cedar River, MSU’s beautiful gardens, the Dairy Store, museums and other places around campus.
