PAUL NEMSER

Janus

To the gate we walk, as out-of-our-time
As air bubbles trapped in volcanic rock.
It's east, you say, pointing west.
How easily one erases to the other.
The god of endings hangs on his hinges,
no right, or left, or wrong.