Quality Control

Riviera Wine makes every effort to ensure that all wines we sell are of impeccable quality and in a condition appropriate for the age of the wine. This includes purchasing for trusted sources with a solid track record, attending wine authenticating training, physical inspections and appropriate storage conditions at our warehouse. Including thorough provenance checks, physical inspections and appropriate storage conditions. As a result, condition issues rarely occur.

However, despite above mentioned efforts on the behalf of Riviera Wine faulty bottles does occur on the rare occasion. For corked bottles or wines otherwise out of condition for consumption Riviera Wine will be under no obligation to offer replacements or other compensation of any kind. Corked bottles are the responsibility of the producer as it is a fault linked to production and quality control at production site. For bottles over 200.00 € ex VAT Riviera wine will however assist and sending corked bottles back to the producer to request a replacement bottle. Cost for shipping will be paid by the customer. Should the bottles be tested positively for TCA a replacement bottles would in most cases be supplied but it is up to each producer to decide this.

Furthermore, it is impossible for a supplier to guarantee that wines will always show at their best. Regardless of reputation and price, wine is an evolving product and it is impossible to know all events a certain bottle has been through in its lifetime. Wines can age and mature in different ways and we will not bear any liability for subjective judgments such as quality or drinkability. All older bottles are therefore sold as seen and we cannot accept returns for any wines should they be corked, tainted or fatigued in any way.
