

Concept

Janus is designed in the spirit of planetary movement and deep space. The lamp is named for the two-faced Roman deity of transitions as well as the planet Saturn's outermost ring, two distinct, yet connected symbols.

Form & Function

Janus is a table lamp constructed from machined brass and fitted with a halo of dimmable LEDs that shine inwards. At the center of the ring, an adjustable shade of dichroic glass filters the light. A small handle on the lamp's side provides the user with the ability to turn the dichroic shade 360 degrees, changing the quality of the light as it rotates. When Janus is off, the room's ambient light plays off the reflective nature of the glass, creating mirrored, colored and transparent effects.
