For our 'Chill Out' edition, we went in search of idyllic spaces, be they city, country or coastal hideaways, with the power to carry us away to unique, relaxing environments, and which encourage us to completely detach ourselves from our body and mind. For this reason, we wandered here and there around the world. In Portugal, we visited two fabulous eno-tourism establishments – Casa do Rio, in the Douro Superior area and the Monverde Wine Experience Hotel, the first wine hotel in the Vinho Verdes area. Later, we travelled down to the Alentejo region to discover Casas Caiadas and, further south still, in the Algarve, Pensão Agrícola. Setting out for more far-flung parts of the globe, we landed in Tokyo in order to discover the first 'in an urban center' Aman belonging to this luxury hotel group, followed by Vietnam and Oman, where we took delight in the paradisiacal settings of two Six Senses resorts.

In Interiors, we went in quest of spaces that make the most of their connection with outdoor environments, offering that intimate contact with nature which brings us so much serenity. And for the first time in our pages we have combined the Architect and Artist with Attitude section in order to bring you to the unexpected and provocative interdisciplinary work of the FAHR 021.3 project; and we also make our début interviewing the landscape architecture studio - T.R.O.P. terrains + open space – with a vast oeuvre all over Asia. We also went to take a closer look at 100% Portuguese projects which we recommend keeping an eye on: we're talking about brands such as Ágva – with its marvellous selection of exclusive pieces – and Nosolid, which presented us with a fantastic collection of furniture. For our 'Estímulo' section, we delve into an imaginary world, populated by toys, dolls and monsters. We wanted to transmit the spirit of sharing, friendship and fun that is spontaneously generated when we receive our friends for moments of outdoor relaxation, inviting our readers to join us in this festive world together with plenty of humour mixed in. Finally, with eleven years behind us, we have decided to invite different artists to interpret and explore, in their own inimitable way, the flower featured in each edition, with the conviction of enjoying surprising results, such as the perspective of Victor Mineiro, our special guest in this edition. Happy reading and great moments of pure Chill Out!
