Unifying a Global Fellowship of Social Innovators

— Case Study

Yunus & Youth supports young social impact innovators from around the globe to develop their business projects and to become financially sustainable. In 2017, Y&Y chose Bridge for Billions’ online platform to help effectively incubate their third cohort of entrepreneurs and unify their program.

Challenge
Unifying a global entrepreneurship program across 41 countries

When starting to plan for their third cohort, Yunus & Youth was looking for a platform that could unify their program participants hailing from 5 different continents. Not only did they want to improve how the fellows’ final business plans were developed and structured, but also to ensure that each user was getting a similar experience & holistic learning solution. Y&Y was also looking for ways to track users’ progress and interact with their fellows virtually through feedback and direct comments. Because Y&Y is fully focused on supporting social entrepreneurs, they were looking for a solution that understood this as core to their work.

Solution
Harnessing technology to better support social entrepreneurs

Y&Y chose to replace their previous system of google drive folders and online webinars in favor of Bridge for Billions’ comprehensive digital platform. Y&Y’s fellows and mentors connected via Bridge to work through our proven methodology of 8 business tools and build a vetted business plan together. By the end of the program, all of the participants had produced full business plans that they could use to pitch and share with investors going forward.

The program managers at Y&Y were able to use our Admin Panel to check in on the fellows’ work, have an overview of the progress, and set or adjust deadlines as needed. Bridge for Billions’ mission to make quality entrepreneurship support accessible to all and our spotlight on Social Impact within business planning made us a natural choice for Y&Y.

“We incorporated Bridge for Billions into our program so our entrepreneurs could formalize their business plans with a clear structure.”

“This tool was very helpful, because it made me consolidate all the past learnings, consumer research, and information from focus groups into one single area.”

Result
In 2017, 25 fellows from Yunus & Youth’s third cohort group were selected from over 300 applicants, while the 2018 edition of the program supported 35 young people from 20 different countries working on innovative solutions under the SDGs (Sustainable Development Goals).

By tapping into talent from P&G and Citibank, Yunus & Youth was able to source employees to mentor their young fellows. The entrepreneurs that participated in the program had access to a wide-scale online platform involving sets of activities based on lean startup principles, while each stage of the curriculum took fellows through the next step of development.

Program Admin rated:

- Working with Bridge for Billions increased the quality of my program: 5/5
- My entrepreneurs are better prepared than if we had not used the platform: 5/5
- Quality of the content of the business tools: 5/5

About the Client
Inspired by the work of Nobel Peace Prize winner Muhammad Yunus, Yunus & Youth has one goal: to make the challenge of social entrepreneurship easier. They work to enable young social entrepreneurs to create a stronger positive social impact, while also helping them to become financially sustainable by providing mentoring, business training, and access to a global network.
