Immovable

When I'm tempted to think all my efforts for Jesus are unfruitful, the Lord has a way of correcting me. This happened a few days ago when he emphasised this scripture. “Therefore, my beloved brothers, be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing that in the Lord your labour is not in vain.” (1 Cor 15:58) This language is especially strong. For a start, the key Greek word for “immovability” appears only here in the New Testament. It means not being shifted off course with respect to doing the work of God. In Paul, “work...labour” have specific reference to gospel ministry (1 Cor 4:12; 16:16). This could be prayer, acts of kindness, or anything we do as Christians in our obedience to Jesus as Lord. The apostle is confident that our labours are “not in vain” because he has a very big picture of all of God’s plans, in which all believers are included by grace. He speaks of “a plan for the fullness of time, to unite all things in him/Christ, things in heaven and things on earth.” (Eph 1:10). Nothing is left out of the wisdom of a divine sovereign plan to sustain, sum up, multiply and perfect any good work done for Jesus. In this respect, the kingdom of God is all inclusive.

Thankfully, this has nothing to do with any natural human goodness or effort, but that everything done “in the Lord” (1 Cor 1:13; Eph :10; 2 Tim 2:1) is united to his glorious life. A glorious life which climaxed in the central issue of 1 Corinthians 15, the resurrection. It isn't the attempt of our feeble twisted consciences (1 Cor 8:12) to put a positive spin on our efforts that can calm us about us concerning the effectiveness and fruit of our deeds. The renewed Christian conscience is at peace before God when it is sealed by the Spirit (Eph 4:30) who raised Jesus from the dead (Rom 8:11). Let's stop looking inward at ourselves. Let's look to Jesus (Heb 12:2), expectant in faith about our own resurrection and the rewards which will definitely accompany it in him (Matt 25:46). Let Paul have the last word, “continue in the faith, stable and steadfast, not shifting from the hope of the gospel that you heard, which has been proclaimed in all creation under heaven” (Col 1:23)

John

MISSION PROJECT UPDATE Information for your Prayers

Scripture Union

Scripture Union WA's summer programs were fully booked and wait-listed as children, young people and families enjoyed and experienced SU's unique and engaging ministry. Jesus was shared, relationships were built, and lives were changed through the gospel at beachside caravan parks, the Geographe campsite, farms and other rural surroundings across the South West.

A story from a summer camp:

"Mark came from a non-churched background and had never experienced prayer. On day one of camp, he prayed for the first time with a simple "Keep us safe today". With encouragement from his leader, he became increasingly more excited about prayer and by day three was praying for others without even being asked. By the end of camp, he was praying for each of his peers by name in a mature and heartfelt way that was clearly inspired by the presence of God."
