MARSHA RAY

Vice President - Practice Support

ABOUT

Marsha is OPVEON's Vice President of Practice Support. She is responsible for managing a team of Trial Technology Consultants, Creative Services Specialists, Production Specialists, and all of OPVEON's administrative staff.

By profession, Marsha is a Certified Trial Technology Consultant and former paralegal. Over the course of her career, Marsha has had the opportunity to work on all types of complex litigation. Everything from multi-jurisdictional commercial litigation to contract disputes, employment law cases, construction law, business torts, breach of fiduciary duty actions, estate claims, fraud actions, property damages, products liability and complex divorce and family law matters.

Her organizational and case management expertise has helped to minimize the stressors of trial preparation and maximize efficiency in the courtroom.

Marsha is married to Jim Ray, a military veteran. Together, they have three children.

“The most rewarding aspect of my career is knowing that I make a difference by managing the litigation process and strategizing on case themes. The opportunities are endless and invigorating. I love being a business leader and working daily to inspire my team to perform at their full potential. I give my best to my team so that they give their best to our clients.”
