More about the programme

What is this learning track about?

Mental wellbeing is our capacity to deal with life's ups and downs.

During this learning track you get to know and you develop the 6 topics that define wellbeing. We put learning into practice by combining online training with short digital learning interventions, on the job coaching and online assignments. We use gamification as a tool to make sure there is fun and joy when learning. We use the StreetSmart app to keep the trainees accountable by motivating and supporting them while they apply everything they learn at work.

- 1 ● Self-acceptance is the basic condition for future success because it is a skill that allows us to shift focus from the past to the future.
- 2 ● Purpose can be defined as the search for the meaning we want to give our professional life, which forms the basis for the pursuit of our goals.
- 3 ● Autonomy encompasses the feeling that professional activities and goals are the result of our own choices and initiatives to align them as much as possible with our values and ambitions.
- 4 ● Environmental mastery starts from the ability of each of us to deal effectively with our lives, our professional challenges and our world.
- 5 ● Personal progress is the pursuit to progress and therefore develop oneself in different and often challenging situations, from a belief that this can be done.
- 6 ● Connection & network involves the development of lasting relationships characterised by reciprocity, regularity and appreciation.

It's all about learning

The digital learning tracks are developed based on our experience with distance learning.

With our StreetSmart (Mobile School) brand we support 60 organisations in 30 countries in setting up personal development programmes for street children and youth. Those children can't be pulled out of the streets and simply forced into a classroom setting. Learning has to happen on the streets in a lean and mean way. To do so, we developed tools such as the mobile school and, more recently, StreetSmart Impact, a digital learning, coaching and monitoring tool for professionals working with street-connected children.

StreetwiZe has built a track record supporting hundreds of companies and organisations over the past 10 years. Starting with traditional classroom workshops and evolving to blended approaches over the last 2 years. We have the necessary expertise to develop and facilitate the right digital content and blended approach for your learning questions.

By combining the Mobile School experiences on the streets with the academic backbone and business insights of StreetwiZe, we developed the digital learning tracks. A pragmatic blended learning approach that can be guided and monitored with our app StreetSmart Impact.
