

CAPTAIN “T” INTRODUCTION

Some occupations are more demanding than others. Can you imagine the amount of time it would take to become an airline pilot or a qualified lawyer? Now consider doing both simultaneously while also building an award-winning business and overseeing a state agency for the governor at the same time. William “T” Thompson has done just that. He has also served on and chaired numerous business and non-profit boards, most recently serving as president and CEO of the Association of Graduates of the Air Force Academy, which represents its 50,000 graduates.

A magazine once wrote of Captain “T,” “he seems to make attaining the American dream look easy!” The dream is possible, says Captain “T” by following some simple principles and developing a commitment to do the best you can: to live a life of excellence.

Featured in numerous media, including the Wall Street Journal, Black Enterprise magazine, NBC, CBS and PBS, just to mention a few, please join me in welcoming Captain William “T” Thompson, JD, CSP, as he takes us on “The Flight to Excellence,” the title of his new book.
