

Directions: Create a ripple of kindness in your classroom by writing a kind sentence about someone. Hand the paper to that person. That student then pays it forward to someone else by writing a kind sentence about someone else. How big can your ripple of kindness get?

The image shows a worksheet with eight rows of curved lines. Each row consists of two parallel, upward-curving lines that create a wide, shallow U-shape. In the center of each of these U-shapes, there is a downward-pointing arrow. The arrow is composed of a vertical line segment with a small horizontal bar at the top, and a downward-pointing arrowhead. The rows are evenly spaced and extend across the width of the page.
