Sure, the next few months promise to bring heaps of frigid fun. The winter also makes Jack Frost a permanent resident. It won't be long before the thermometer in your neck of the woods dances around 32°F and sharp, piercing gusts penetrate the umpteen layers you carefully put on before leaving the house. Between December and February, it's not so much a cold snap as a long, extended freeze with a solid chance of precipitation. Why should you grin and bear it while the wind is chilling you to the bone and you've lost feeling in all extremities? Don't you deserve a reprieve from arctic temperatures and icy roads? We think so!

Ready to fly the frozen coop? Pack your bags for these sun-drenched spots across the globe.

St. Kitts

If you tire of the beaches of St. Kitts, there are always rainforest treks, 4x4 expeditions and old sugar cane plantations to be toured.

Guaranteed excellent weather and a wealth of outdoor pursuits await in St. Kitts. The Caribbean nation enjoys a balmy climate with average temperatures hovering around 82°F. Translation: perfect conditions for rainforest treks, 4x4 expeditions and touring old sugar cane plantations. Even better, a winter jaunt to St. Kitts doesn't have to break the bank thanks to a slew of affordable beach bars, restaurants and hotels. On the flip side, if you're in a position to splurge, we recommend shacking up at the Park Hyatt St. Kitts.
