Professional Profile

About Me

I like to think of myself as a storyteller. I enjoy partnering with great people and organizations and helping to share their message with the world.

I have experience in a variety of design environments, including print, web, and video production. I've worked in both agency and university settings, and understand the importance of delivering quality work on deadline.

I get told to 'make it pretty' a lot. Of course I want my work to be beautiful, but I also believe that good design can help solve business problems.

Work Experience

2019 to Present
Interactive Designer
Cornett

Leads the conceptualization, wire-framing, prototyping, interaction and visual design, and front-end markup for interactive and digital projects, including websites, web apps, mobile web, and mobile app design. Creates responsive web designs that match the design aesthetic of Cornett's respective clients. Works on large-scale websites that require many phases of design, from wireframing to moodboards/style tiles, design systems, to final design. Communicates design-thinking to clients and stakeholders. Maintains high skill levels in software programs required to perform assigned job functions.

2015 to 2018
Senior Communications Director
University of Kentucky Center for Applied Energy Research

Lead all communications efforts on behalf of the Center for Applied Energy Research, interpreting complex scientific data and translating the information into accessible designs and content. Produced, distributed, and maintained all print, web, and video content for the program. Coordinated with several project teams to organize and promote various programmatic events.

Education

2007 to 2011.
Bachelor's Degree, English
