New National Honor Society Members and Junior Scholars inducted at Springwood

Springwood School's Bianca Bettis Freeman Chapter of the National Honor Society held its annual induction on February 19, 2020 in the Dale and Bianca Freeman Fine Arts Center at Springwood School. The National Honor Society recognizes students who combine exceptionally high academic achievement with positive contribution to the school community. There are four priorities of the National Honor Society: scholarship, leadership, character, and service. Springwood inducted twenty new members from 10th -12th grade to the National Honor Society. The National Honor Society's new inductees included four students from the twelfth grade, thirteen students from the eleventh grade, and three students from the tenth grade. Students in 8th and 9th were also recognized for their high academic achievements and awarded membership into Springwood School's Junior Scholars. The Junior Scholars inducted five students from the ninth grade and nine students from the eighth grade.
