

Nina Drucker

ASSOCIATE

Nina specializes in complex dissolutions, devoting the same amount of energy toward cases that settle as cases ending in trial, and frequently partners with highly trained experts. Nina works closely with her clients to formulate and execute a strategy that meets her client's objectives. Nina is an empathetic practitioner. She is discreet, nonjudgmental, and patient in handling highly personal family law matters. Nina is a strong advocate in the public forum and has years of experience working with private judges and mediators.

Nina counsels her clients through all aspects of the dissolution process including, but not limited to, child custody, child support, spousal support, fiduciary duty breaches, reimbursement claims, and property division.

Prior to joining DeLacey, Riebel & Shindell, LLP, she was an associate for a premier family law firm in Los Angeles--Wasser, Cooperman & Mandles, PC. Nina has been practicing family law exclusively since 2014.

When she is not at her desk, Nina enjoys spending time with her family; she has two young children.
