Apteo Overview

One-liner

Apteo provides a data management and analytics platform that helps institutions and individuals manage, segment, centralize, correlate, and forecast data all in one place.

How it works

Institutions and individuals increasingly need to make data-driven decisions, but it's becoming increasingly hard to know where to find data and how to determine if it's relevant.

Apteo provides a single platform that combines a data repository, which allows clients to centralize and organize their own data alongside more than 2 million public datasets that we bring to the table, with a self-service analytics module, that lets anyone use A.I. and data science to answer their own questions.

A cloud version of the product provides access to anyone that needs to find and analyze data, and we also provide an enterprise version that provides additional security and customization for larger companies.
