

25 January, 2020

To Whom It May Concern,

I was lucky enough to work with Jessica Stanley for four years at Humaan. Here, we collaborated closely on a multitude of projects in which Jess was the project manager and I was the lead designer.

With Jess steering a project I was always filled with confidence. I knew the project would be focused and organised; I knew that we'd have a healthy, trusting, and communicative relationship with the client; and I'd know the needs of all parties — clients, users, and the team — would always be considered. This contributed to many successful projects and personally, always made me feel empowered and supported as a designer on her team.

Jess goes above and beyond what you'd expect from any good project manager. If Jess comes across something new, she'll take the time to understand it in order to make considered decisions. If Jess notices a team member responds to an alternate form of communication, she'll adapt her communication style to suit. With a trifecta of design knowledge, technical know-how, and a business brain, Jess is always able to provide feedback that is holistic, strategic, and constructive.

I would whole heartedly recommend Jess for any role she pursues. Any team would be lucky to have her.

Please do not hesitate to reach out to me on +1 (408) 813-9113 if you would like to discuss Jess's qualifications or application further.

Warm regards,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'Kylie Timpani', written in a cursive, fluid style.

Kylie Timpani
Product Designer, Apple