

5 THINGS EVERY NEW PARENT SHOULD DO

Guardianship Plans

If you die without proper plans in place, a court, and not you, will determine who will care for your children under 18. If you plan correctly, however, the court must obey your wishes with regard to the care of your children.

Set up a Trust

Trusts are the best way to protect your assets and provide for your children in the event of your incapacity or death. These are comprehensive and thorough documents for the care and support of your family.

Power of Attorney

If you have children who are going off to college, and you still want to maintain some control over their lives, it is important that you have Power of Attorney over your children so that you can make decisions they might not otherwise have the ability to make.

Talk with Loved Ones

Having conversations with your loved ones, particularly potential Guardians of your children under 18, is an important part of a successful Estate Plan. Your loved ones should know what your wishes are so that they can see them through if you are no longer around or able to do so.

Talk to an Attorney Who Cares

Finding the proper attorney to help you make these decisions and plan for unexpected is very important. The Taormina Firm works closely with young and growing families to make sure that all of their planning needs are met so that they can have peace of mind knowing that their families will be safe and secure.
