

Questions worth asking police when questioning the unlawful lockdown directives.

Remember, be as polite as possible so as to not give the police any reason to escalate the situation.

Always stay in honour and if they request your name simply say that you are not interested in entering a contract with them. If police threaten to place you under arrest, simply state that you will give them your details under duress.

They need you to freely give your name and address to make a legitimate contract.

Police always ask you for your address or where you live. This is a trick question that makes you the dead entity or person, because if you live at the address you are admitting that you are not alive in any other place.

Most police are not even aware of the meaning of the words they are speaking. They are collecting money for their masters.

Don't be afraid of these people as they thrive on fear. Be confident and of a sound mind. After all, an illegitimate fine is really all they can do to you anyway.

If the police act as though they are your friend, don't believe it, as their end game is to get you to enter into contract with them so they can extort your money.

Here is a good list of questions to ask the police when interacting with them. I have not put in any legislation, as the police don't seem to respond to legislation anymore due to their supposed new powers.

- Are you an authorised public health officer?
- Did you have any specific training to be an authorised public health officer?
- Do you believe that these emergency directives are fair and equitable?
- Are you acting honestly and with integrity?

- Are you aware that wearing a mask or face covering is detrimental to one's health?
- Did you know that wearing masks and face coverings has no impact on stopping the spread of a virus? <https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pubmed/19216002>
- Do you think that I am a risk to public health?
- Why do you believe I am a risk to public health?
- Do you have a Human Biosecurity Control Order to verify that I am a risk to public health?
- Will you accept liability for any negative physical or mental health effects I incur from wearing a mask or face covering?

- Do you really believe that you have a right to destroy my business?
- Why do you believe that you have this right?
- Will you accept the Liability for all my financial losses I receive as a result of following the Government directive to close my business down?
