

The Virginia Venture Fund is proud to announce the addition of John Eshirov as Managing Director of VVF's new Impact Fund.

John is a fourth-year student at the University of Virginia pursuing a B.S. in Systems Engineering with a minor in Engineering Business and is originally from the Bronx, New York. This summer, John will be working as a summer analyst in the investment banking divisions at Goldman Sachs. Previously, John worked in the investment banking division at Citigroup. John is also an undergraduate research assistant at UVA's Engineering School, a member of the Black Commerce Student Network, a brother of the Alpha Kappa Psi business fraternity, and serves as the Chief Operating Officer of the Community Honor Fund. John is passionate about understanding and developing the intersectionality of business, engineering, and technology. He seeks to be an investor and strategic advisor to companies whose mission is to advance social good. Outside of the classroom, John actively power lifts, plays basketball, and sometimes knits.

We sincerely look forward to what John will accomplish as part of our VVF team. John and the Executive Board will continue to build out the rest of the Impact Fund team.

If you, or anyone you know, would like to contribute to the Impact Fund, we are also pleased to announce we are now open to funding from individuals and larger groups. As mentioned previously, VVF will be matching contributions up to $2,000. Contributions can be made via check (sent to the McIntire Foundation with VVF noted in the memo) or via Venmo (@virginiaventure-fund). If you have any questions about how to contribute, please reach out to David Goldstein or David Malkin.

Any and all support is greatly appreciated as we attempt to do our part in supporting the fight against racial inequality.

Sincerely,
VVF Executive Board
