Presented by: Jennifer L. Hartwell, MD, FACS
Associate Dean of Wellness, Chief Wellness Officer

Objectives:

1. Define moral injury, burnout and wellness, and compassion fatigue.
2. Define how moral injury, burnout, and compassion fatigue affect our work and personal lives.
3. Provide action items that can mitigate the issues and bring joy back to work

Dr. Jennifer Hartwell is a Trauma and Acute Care Surgeon who practices at IU Health Methodist Hospital in Indianapolis, IN. She completed her medical school degree from Wright State University in Dayton, OH, in 2005 followed by a General Surgical Residency at University of Illinois at Chicago in 2010. She finished a fellowship in Trauma and Surgical Critical Care from the University of Tennessee Health Sciences Center in Memphis, TN, in 2011. She worked at Grant Medical Center in Columbus, OH, before joining the faculty at Indiana University in 2016. In 2019, Dr. Hartwell was named as the inaugural Chief Wellness Officer and Associate Dean of Wellness in a joint venture between IU Health Physicians and Indiana University School of Medicine. She collaborates with Wellness leaders throughout the school and medical campus to promote a wholistic approach to wellness for all learners and providers as she continues to care for critically injured patients during her clinical time. She resides in the Indianapolis suburbs with her husband of 22 years and their four children.

The Ethics Lecture Series are free and open to all. Continuing education credit is offered to physicians, nurses, social workers, psychologists, and chaplains at no charge, regardless of their institutional affiliation.
