Colin M. E. Halverson, Ph.D.

*Faculty Investigator, Indiana University Center for Bioethics
Assistant Professor of Medicine, IU School of Medicine
Adjunct Assistant Professor of Anthropology, IUPUI
Research Scientist, Regenstrief Institute*

Objectives:

1. Consider the implications of uncertainty on mental and physical wellbeing.
2. Develop a socially-embedded context for difficult patient encounters.
3. Discuss gendered differences in validation and expression of pain.

Colin Halverson is assistant professor of medicine and faculty investigator in Indiana University Center for Bioethics. He holds a Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in medical and linguistic anthropology and completed a postdoctoral fellowship in bioethics at Vanderbilt University. His research focuses on ethical issues related to genetic testing and the return of results, in particular with regards to cancers and rare diseases. Outside of work Colin enjoys painting, baking, and caring for his numerous plants.

The Ethics Lecture Series are free and open to all. Continuing education credit is offered to physicians, nurses, social workers, psychologists, and chaplains at no charge, regardless of their institutional affiliation.
