

Fairbanks Lecture Series in Clinical Ethics

Development & Implementation of System-Wide Pandemic Crisis Standards of Care: Lessons Learned from COVID-19

Gabriel Bosslet, MD, MA
IU School of Medicine
Assoc. Professor of Clinical Medicine

Amy Martin DBe, MA
IU Health
Executive Director of Clinical & Organizational Ethics

When the COVID pandemic hit in March of 2020, Drs. Bosslet and Martin focused their ethical and clinical knowledge on the difficult strategies that would need to be implemented if the IU Health system reached full capacity. This lecture will cover the multiple decisions that were faced when examining ethical and operational complexities of a potential allocation protocol in a large health care system.

Date: 05/05/21 | Time: 12:00-1:00pm
Presented via Zoom: Click here to Register

Objectives:

- Describe the definition of “crisis standards of care”.
- Analyze the ethical underpinnings of critical care triage decision-making during an overwhelming pandemic.
- Summarize the implementation strategy for rapid triage decisions across a large, statewide health system.

The Ethics Lecture Series are free and open to all. Continuing education credit is offered to physicians, nurses, social workers, psychologists, and chaplains at no charge, regardless of their institutional affiliation.
