    <description><![CDATA[In 1993 I released my first CD, entitled "Peace Pieces" as part of a seven-year collaboration with Robert Willey. The main components were: Roland Sound Canvas module, Yamaha KX76 keyboard controller, Korg Wavestation, Panasonic SV-3700 DAT recorder. Software: Studio Vision Instruments (Robert Willey). The sounds and processes had a big effect on half the album's songs. It allowed the user to set boundaries on random events that varied working in this environment comes through in the recordings. The era ended when my Macintosh and Apple's operating systems. The other important piece of software, Studio Vision also went by could be linked together, resulting in clear jumps from one texture to another. Out of the Blue

In 1993 I released my first CD, entitled "Peace Pieces" as part of a seven-year art/life performance.

"Out of the Blue" is where my music seems to come from, which I consider more a series of discoveries than compositions. I start with an idea and keep exploring it, paying attention to where it wants to go. Along the way I try to make it sound as I would like to hear it, and to stop before it gets spoiled.
