Retirement Plan Limits for the Tax Years 2012 - 2018

On October 19, 2017, the Internal Revenue Service announced the cost-of-living adjustments applicable to dollar limitations for retirement plans (aka the "Retirement Plan Limits") and other items for Tax Year 2018. The Internal Revenue Code provides for limitations on contribution amounts and other benefits for qualified retirement plans and other deferred compensation plans. Every year, the IRS Commissioner reviews these benefits versus cost-of-living increases (i.e. inflation) to determine whether any changes are warranted. The adjustment procedures for retirement plans are similar to those for Social Security.

For 2018, many limitations have increased, because the change in the cost-of-living index met the statutory thresholds that trigger their adjustment. The limitation of 401(k), 403(b), and 457 elective deferrals increased by $500 to $18,500. The Catch-Up Contribution limit remains at $6,000.

The Annual Defined Contribution limit increased from $54,000 to $55,000, the Annual Compensation Limit increased from $270,000 to $275,000, and the Social Security Wage Base increased from $127,200 to $128,700.

Please see below for a list of 401(k) and non-401(k) limits for the Tax Year 2018 as well as previous years going back to 2012.
