An Annual Conference for lay preachers,
worship leaders and those in church leadership

Dr Meg Warner

Meg is the Old Testament and Hebrew language tutor at Northern College. She is a lay member of the General Synod of the Church of England and a Licensed Lay Minister. Meg was part of the team Tragedy and Congregations and edited their volume, Tragedies and Christian Congregations: The Practical Theology of Trauma (London: Routledge, 2020). She is author of Abraham: A journey through Lent (London: SPCK, 2015), SPCK's Lent Book for 2016, and its follow-up, Joseph: A story of resilience (London: SPCK, 2020).

Revd Dr Adam Scott

Adam is Tutor in Ministerial Formation at Northern College and a URC NSM. He is also a chartered psychologist who has specialised in supporting survivors of trauma. Adam has already played a significant part in supporting students and churches during these strange and difficult times.

Revd Dr Rosalind Selby

Rosalind is completing her ninth year as Principal of Northern College, and also teaches Biblical Studies (mainly New Testament). Rosalind says: "I'm passionate about ensuring our students are as well supported as possible, and if we can share some of our skills to support the wider church, I'll be delighted." She is looking forward to opening Scripture with participants.

Revd Alison Davis

Alison is a Support & Development Tutor in her first year in post and is in pastoral charge of two congregations in Romford. Alison is looking forward to learning and sharing insights for her ministry emerging from lockdown.
