

Above left: In the kitchen, the designer wanted to ground the neutral cabinetry and surround with the darker color of the islands. She pulled the sapphire color in with the counterstools and backsplash. Due to the room's high ceiling, a custom hood was built, and large lighting pendants help unify the space. Above, right and opposite, top: Known as the keeping room, this space is a favorite of Patton's because of its comfortable yet functional nature. The homeowner loves to cook while her husband chats with her from the comfort of the oversized chairs. Opposite, below: The downstairs playroom was given a large sectional sofa, where guests can easily gather.
