

September 2, 2021

Dear members of the Senate Democratic Caucus,

As organizations representing millions of people across the country, we write with shared urgency about the threats facing our democracy and the critically-needed commensurate response we are counting on you to deliver. We are rapidly approaching the last-chance moment for the Senate to pass strong voting rights and democracy-protecting legislation and finally address the filibuster that stands in the way of their passage.

The Senate should have taken action before leaving for August recess. As summer ends and the Senate prepares to come back to what is shaping up to be a busy fall, we are making a new and urgent call for action as the window rapidly closes to protect our democracy.

The Census Bureau's release of redistricting data has set off a round of partisan gerrymandering that will allow politicians across the country to rig congressional districts for the next decade. Meanwhile legislatures across America have passed dangerous new laws to restrict voting rights and revamp election laws for their own partisan advantage. Unless the Senate joins the House in passing strong federal legislation in response - and quickly - it will be too late to protect voting rights in the 2022 midterm elections and draw fair districts in the decennial redistricting process.

The majority of the Senate, and the entirety of the Senate Democratic caucus, supports debate and passage of legislation to protect voting rights, curb partisan gerrymandering, and strengthen our democracy. As we saw on June 22nd and then again on August 11th, the only thing standing in the way is the outdated and abused filibuster.

Minority Leader Mitch McConnell (R-KY) and his Republican colleagues are clearly intent on protecting state-level efforts to undermine our democracy. In fact, Sen. McConnell has called defeating voting rights legislation his "highest priority." And he plans to continue abusing the filibuster as his weapon of partisan obstruction.

Over the recess Senators have heard from constituents committed to protecting our democracy and prepared to hold elected officials accountable, including members of the organizations we represent. But no amount of citizen engagement and organizing can overcome this harsh reality: if the filibuster is left intact, Republicans will continue to weaponize it to block legislative progress.

We agree with the assessment made by many of you that "failure is not an option" when it comes to vital federal legislation protecting Americans' voting rights and our democracy. These bedrock issues should not be subject to partisan filibusters that allow a minority of senators to subvert the will of the people and obstruct legislation supported by the majority.

We understand that the Senate plans to address voting rights and democracy protection as soon as it returns from recess. To meet the urgency of the moment and scale of the threat, we call on the Senate to return to Washington as quickly as possible to address the filibuster and deliver the federal voting and democracy protections we need.

There is not a moment to waste. Every day that passes with the filibuster still standing, as it does today, threatens the health of our democracy and the voting rights of our fellow Americans. The choice is crystal clear: stand with us and your constituents and protect our democracy, or protect the abused and outdated “Jim Crow relic.” There is no third option.

We look forward to the day - in the near future - when the health of our democracy is secured, the voting rights of our fellow citizens are protected, and the filibuster no longer presents an existential threat to the functioning of the U.S. Senate and the fate of our democracy.

Signed,
