Case Studies

When Hurricane Katrina damaged more than 100 buildings causing more than $25 million in losses, the University System of Mississippi reached out to the Ironclaim. Because Ironclaim was involved from the start, we were able to develop a game plan to ensure a quick and comprehensive claim process. A representative for the university says, "Not only did you overdeliver on your ability to navigate our settlements, you kept excellent dialogue with the insurance companies, educating them on the appropriate coverage applications for our policies." Ultimately, Ironclaim was able to increase the settlement by more than 50%.

In March 2008 an EF-2 tornado hit downtown Atlanta, damaging the largest hospital in the state of Georgia. After an extensive state bid and review process, Ironclaim was selected to manage the claim. The original settlement offer from Fireman's Fund was $800,000 but Ironclaim was able to negotiate a settlement of $3.2 million. The client says that, "Your firm's excellent ability to manage risk relations during a trying time allowed us to put our facility back on track, which was paramount to us regaining our footing."

When a leak in a fourth-floor bathroom unit caused damage to 32 other rooms, this hotel reached out to Ironclaim to help. We were able to get the insurance company to replace the carpeting not only in the affected hallway, but also in the unaffected parts of the building too. Plus, we had all carpeting replaced in the 32 affected rooms, reversing a decision initially made by the carrier.
