

Hot-el Girl Summer: Accommodation site filters rooms by air con in preparation for July heat wave

A leading accommodation booking platform has launched a new page dedicated to properties and hotel rooms with air conditioning, in preparation for the impending July heatwave.

In an attempt to help frazzled Brits feel more comfortable during the upcoming heatwave, accommodation booking platform LateRooms.com, has launched a new webpage dedicated to helping customers find hotel rooms equipped with air conditioning units.

It's forecast that early July will see temperatures hit highs of 32C in France, before pushing towards the United Kingdom. In response, LateRooms.com has developed a new filter to allow members of the public to search through 100s of air conditioned rooms all in one place.

To access to the page and filter through the air conditioning rooms, click here:

<https://www.laterooms.com/en/hotels-with-air-conditioning>

Data from the Met Office also suggests that temperatures will most likely be higher than normal stretching into mid-July and beyond with southern areas experiencing the hottest weather.*

LateRooms.com is a trusted marketplace for travellers to discover the best last-minute hotel deals across the UK, Europe and worldwide destinations. The site is owned by the Rest Easy Group, which also oversees Snaptrip, Last Minute Cottages, Big Cottages, Dog Friendly Cottages, iKnow, Villa Holidays and LateCottages.

Matthew Fox, CEO of LateRooms, said,

“Modern day life is tough especially when you can't get a good night's rest and nothing interrupts a well-deserved rest like a hot night. I'm hoping that this new tool can help bring some comfort to some very warm patrons soon.”

ENDS

NOTES TO EDITORS

*<https://www.metoffice.gov.uk/weather/forecast/uk>

FOR MORE INFORMATION