WINE

Continental

Often found inland without the presence of water, continental climates are defined by marked seasonal changes. Hot summers and cold winters. The home of many classic varieties, this testing climate challenges both vineyards and vigneron, but in the right hands it's magical.

Maritime

A climate all about balance. The summers are warm, and the winter temperatures aren't too cold. Often found near oceans and large bodies of water, this cooling influence has profound effects on the vineyards. Think high levels of acidity and aromatic styles.

Mediterranean

Plenty of sunshine and heat, summers are long and winters are mild. This reliable climate makes its a hot spot for vignerons. Think volcanic land, wild herbs and salty minerals.
