The Most Important Things To Remember About Getting Mad!

Lynne Namka, Ed. D.

I am in charge of my own feelings.

- o I own my feelings.
- o I feel them, name them and then tell them.
- o It is okay to feel angry.
- o I learn how to express my anger in ways that are helpful.
- o Anger is part of being a human being and that's a wonderful thing to be.

I am in charge of my own behavior.

- I get my control.
- o I control what I do with my anger.
- o I gain control over how I let my anger out.
- o I watch my thoughts.
- o Hot thoughts keep me angry. Cool thoughts calm me down.
- o I practice cooling off. I learn to chill myself out. I take a chill pill.
- o I feel good about being responsible for chilling myself out.

I remember people are precious.

- o I stop hurting others or myself with my anger.
- o I watch my thoughts. I watch my words. I watch my actions.
- o I own the hurtful words and actions that I do to others.
- o I learn about things I do when I am stressed and threatened.
- o I stop hurting people with my words and actions.
- o I feel good about treating people with kindness.

• I choose to feel good about myself through speaking out.

- o I express angry feelings in ways that are fair to others and myself.
- o I use my firm and fair words: "I feel ____ when you __ ."
- o I tell my feelings and then try to work things out.
- o I feel good about saying what I feel and what I stand for.

I don't have to hold on to my anger.

- o I find ways to let my anger go.
- o I talk about my hurt feelings and angry feelings.
- o I problem solve things that make me upset.
- o I keep looking until I find someone safe to talk about my anger.
- o I talk about my words and actions that hurt others.

I take my power!

- o I stand up for myself. I stand up for others who are being hurt.
- o I learn to break into my mean thoughts that I use to beat myself up.
- o I feel good about learning about myself.
- o I am powerful when I use my fair and firm words.
