Writers in Residence

Spring 2022
For the 49,000 youth confined in a juvenile facility in the US.

For the 2,200 youth confined in a juvenile facility in Ohio.

These youth have been separated from family and friends. Many of them don’t feel seen, heard, or understood.

Their creative writing in this text rewrites the stereotypes and biases of a juvenile in detention.

This is for them.

Mission

TEACH.
We teach creative writing to youth who are incarcerated.

EMPOWER.
We empower our residents’ voices.

ASSIST.
We assist in their re-entry.
JUSTICE. We believe in creating an environment where justice becomes visible, where restoration from wrong is possible, where people are seen as more than their worst moments, where people can create a future not doomed to repeat the past.

EMPOWERMENT. We believe that our residents can build their self-esteem, resilience, and power through working on their writing, their reflection, their communication, through the creative writing workshop experience.

DIGNITY. We believe that our residents deserve to discover and recognize their own dignity and self-worth through our creative writing workshops. We also believe that if we respect ourselves, our residents, and our student volunteers then we successfully lead by example.

COMMUNITY. We believe in the power of community. This means that we continually welcome and accept our residents into our communities because they belong to an environment that promotes individuality and empowerment, especially upon re-entry. We also believe in the creation of a collaborative atmosphere that amplifies all voices together in a spirit of mutuality and kindness.

RELATIONSHIPS. We believe in fostering genuine, strong, and long-lasting relationships as well as walking with our residents as they navigate the path to re-entry.

Impact

To understand our impact on our residents, we survey them at every creative writing workshop. These surveys give us quantitative and qualitative data so we can provide our residents with a high-quality program experience.

Our Creative Writing Workshop occurs in spring and fall seasons for 12-16 weeks. Each session runs for 60-90 minutes either in-person or remotely via Zoom or Teams and consists of 10-15 residents, 5-7 student volunteers, and 1 teaching artist. Then, we publish, showcase, and distribute chapbooks filled with our residents’ creative writing inside juvenile facilities, on campuses, and throughout the local communities to raise awareness about the juvenile justice system.

Dear reader,

Even though we spent only four weeks at the Wood County Juvenile Detention Center piloting our Creative Writing Workshop, we were thoroughly impressed with every youth’s thoughtfulness, generosity, and eagerness to participate.

The residents always came to our sessions ready to put their best foot forward and give the activity their best effort. We think their writing is excellent regardless, but it’s even more impressive knowing that they were able to jump in with both feet and produce this chapbook in what only amounted to a few hours of meeting time! To hear the youth read their work aloud was always a gratifying experience. For example, the first session involved writing six-word memoirs and the residents generated so much detail and wisdom in such brevity. This is the inspiration behind the title of this chapbook, “Blue Scrubs, Orange Crocs, Infinite Wisdom.”

We are not only filled with gratitude when we think about our experience but also excitement because the residents demonstrated a willingness to try something new and become vulnerable, which we hope they continue to do outside of our program.

Blue Collar
We are the people who wake up early
Go out in fields or out to sites

The people who work hard all day
Come home and work hard all night

We are the people who raise livestock
And the people who raise houses

We are the people who work like a dog.
For the people that they love most Cause we know you gotta work
For the things you want and need
Most in our lives
But we also know, after a hard day's work
After we clean our hands and change our Dirty clothes
The best thing for us is to sit by a fire
And be with friends and family.
Blue Collar Community

D

For my people who work 40 hours plus every week
Who don’t complain when times get tough,
The people that do the back breaking labor that Nobody else would consider doing.

For the people who come home with grit and dirt under their nails Who just can’t give up the hard hands-on work,
The ones who work in the trades by choice,
Who are told you need a college degree to be successful?
Even though that’s not always true.
For the people who will retire by the age of 65,
And the ones who will be able to spend the rest of their lives fulfilled
To the ones who put in the hard work but can relax
For the second half of their lives

There’s a lot that can be learned from the blue-collar community

Dear reader,

We were really amazed at just how much the youth opened up to us, especially in a short amount of time together. We would talk about the dreams we had not only for ourselves but for our children and families too, and the communities filled with people and places that helped create who we are today. Everyone was motivated to contribute and support each other throughout the program.

For example, one of the creative writing workshops that sticks out to us the most occurred in week 4 when we discussed our parents and we realized that while they may have raised us, we don’t have to be the same as them. Simple as it may sound, some of us had never confronted this idea directly until then. Moments like these were responsible for the great poetry that came out of the juvenile facility this spring because the youth who were there really worked for it.

The residents’ high-level of perseverance, their innate ability to continue living despite everything in front of them and behind them, is an attitude that we saw reflected in a lot of the residents and in the poem “Life is Fine” by Langston Hughes: “I could’ve died for love—/But for livin’ I was born,” which inspired this chapbook’s title. Despite whatever hardships they had faced, the youth had dreams and hopes for something out of their lives; they all refused to die because for living they were born, and they are going to make something out of that life they were given. Otherwise, they wouldn’t have come to our sessions, and they wouldn’t have written the poetry and prose that they did.

My Neighborhood Life
AC

I am from listening to music to cope with pain
And barbeques for fun and games
Where hot dogs are cooked and made in a park on a beautiful day
I am from going to a Bengals game on a Sunday night to hoping nothing bad has happened when you’re here and seeing siren lights.
I am from neighborhoods, but you can be and accomplish anything you want.

You may see me cry but it’s of happiness
Growing Star

I am from a quiet neighborhood where it smelled like fresh cut grass and you can hear and see brand new corvettes. I am from a nice house surrounded by nice homes of all sizes I am from where you talk with your friends and family and play call of duty I am headed to an even bigger house where I can work out, meditate, sleep, and pray with a big family helping the future be better than me.

Who I Am?

I am from riding bmx and skateboards til it was dark. I am from the smell and sound of flowing water and loud traffic. I am from the sound of ambulances and police sirens all day from overdoses and accidents. I am from Kings highway.

Lifestyle

I am from where you see the streetlights on and don’t care I am from where you see tweaked walking around where you never know what they’re up to I am from where you smell drugs and garbage I am from where you hear loud cars and police chasing people that were fighting I am from Kings highway.

I Am What I Am

JH

I am from poverty, where you don’t really know who to trust.
I am from a broken home, where all you can smell is drugs and see needles.
I am from a place where you hear gunshots, police sirens, and dogs.
I am from a place that doesn’t define me.
I am from a place with no parents and I manage to get a meal.
I am from where I am.

Hey,

I thought that you could maybe teach me how to be resilient, strong. How to love.
I thought that you could maybe teach me how to not give up when things get hard. I thought that you could teach me that it’s okay to allow yourself to fail to pick yourself back up.
I thought you could maybe teach me not to have so much hate in your heart. I thought that maybe you can teach me it’s not okay to be neglected.
I thought that maybe you could teach me to not allow depression to be your best friend. I thought that maybe you could teach me how to strive to be a better person each day and learn from your mistakes.
Hey, I thought that maybe you can teach me how to be kind and enjoy my childhood. To not be in the streets and to not have me in an environment where I don’t feel safe to play on the porch.

Hey, I thought that maybe you could teach me how to be a man and how to be the perfect father figure for my kids to come and how not to be in and out of a child’s life. Having them wonder when they’re going to see their parents again.

Hey, I thought that you can maybe teach me how to be a kid and not have to rely on a gun to keep me safe because of the decisions I made beforehand. Maybe teach me how to be a successful employee/businessman so I wouldn’t have to sell drugs to be my main source of income. As well as teach me to be a better leader. So, I could’ve taught my friends that went to an early grave to choose a different path instead of the one which let them 6 feet under.

Hey, I wish you could teach me to rely on school on sports and not the streets. I wish I was not so impulsive and more of a humble beast.
Hey, I thought maybe you could teach me that life doesn’t always have to be so chaotic and exciting and that it is okay to be bored. Also, how to stop and think about your choices because some decisions I’ve made have had an impact in my life and if I would’ve stopped for a second to think about my choices and how my choices will affect me. I could’ve avoided a lot of pain I’ve caused to myself and others.

But I will not be sad
I’ll put my hands up put the gun down
I’ll have my toes curled and my feet straight We’ll have our struggles in life but we won’t give up

You may see me cry but I will never bend or fold
You may see me cry but I am not weak
You may see me cry because sometimes it’s okay to cry

You may see me cry, you may see me falter, in this life that we live, can’t get this weight off my shoulders.

Life asked death, “why do people love me but hate you?”
Death said, “Because you are a beautiful lie, and I am a painful truth.”

The strong is not the one who overcomes people with his strength, but the strong is the one who controls himself while in anger.

Dear reader,

When we look back on our experiences, we remain grateful and honored for the chance to interact with the residents who trusted us and felt enough comfortable in the Creative Writing Workshop to share their stories on how life impacted where they are now. It was amazing to see these youth come out of their shells as we progressed through the program. One of our favorite moments this season involved music when the facilitator and the residents started talking about their favorite artists. We learned about so many new and talented musicians, and we were able to relate to each other through music. Then, another core memory that will carry with us related to sports where everyone debated about what activities are or aren’t sports. The residents were so engaged! These experiences helped the youth look at certain topics and issues from a different perspective, which is exactly what we are asking you to consider while you read this chapbook because there is a little bit of everything in here, from aspirations to raps about food, no matter the topic, the residents wrote from their hearts.

It is important to understand that the youth may not have had the opportunity to put their thoughts onto paper before this program. It is important to also realize that their contributions mean a great deal to them because it captures a lot of their thoughts that go on inside their minds that they may not feel safe saying aloud yet. The youth were able to positively express their feelings, accomplishments, and somber experiences. Our Creative Writing Workshop is a free space for the residents to release their emotions through poetry or prose.

For many of us, writing is a very positive practice of self-exploration and learning. We are thankful to have witnessed the residents learn this skill for themselves. It was truly inspiring to see how acceptance of someone’s creative works made them feel more confident and more willing to participate and share again. This experience has not only allowed us to grow as people by letting us see from different perspectives and find confidence in our abilities, but it has also taught us to be more encouraging and that the best support sometimes comes from just listening.

When playing video games, there are good and bad players. One day I met a person who was very bad at the game. I decided to give him tips and teach him how to be better and more respectful during in-game matches. I felt like I was a helpful person in the gaming community.

Another time I was feeling positive power was when I “saved” a slightly hurt bird and helped protect it until it could fly again. I felt power over its life and used that to save it.
I feel the most power when I’m the one in charge of the house or the kids or everything else. Growing up I was always left alone so I had all the power in the house. I could do whatever I wanted without getting in trouble. I did this from 5 years old to 15 years old. If I wanted to walk around town at 3 AM I would walk around town.

One time when I felt powerful was when I got something that none of my brothers got and I felt like I had power over who got to play with it and when they would get to play with it but then after teasing my brothers I lost my power over that toy.

Space is simply bad for a frog ribbit

A time I felt positive power was when I got out of the youth center last time because I was ungrounded from everything because my parents thought I needed a “fresh start” and I felt in control because we were getting along and I had an opportunity to change my life for the better. Obviously that wasn’t the case considering I’m here again but everyone deserves a second chance I guess.

Me and my friends were hanging out about to order some food when 2 planes wrecked outside my house. We called the police. They hid in the plants. The pizza guy brought bottled water and pop with caffeine. After we finished eating, we went shopping. We bought shoes and hair dye. When we got home we watched TV and played the game system.

One time me and a high school baseball player were playing baseball with no cap and that is no cap.

Thoughts and Truths

You may see yourself as small and weak,
I see you as big and strong.
You see yourself as fat,
I see you as the perfect weight.
You think you’re ugly,
I know you’re beautiful.
You think you’re stupid,
But I think you’re very smart.
Dear reader,

When we think about the creative writing workshop this spring, our minds flood with many memories! We always looked forward to spending time with the residents and the other student volunteers every week.

For example, we started sharing our highs and lows of the week at the beginning, which strengthened our relationship with each other, and one of the residents said her low was being denied a release from the juvenile correction center. Instantly, this news, this reality check made our stomachs stop. Everything felt so real because we realized that at a young age, these girls deal with countless adult-like challenges and continue to do so. You should know that these girls didn’t have stereotypical childhoods; they had scary experiences that forced them to grow up faster than most.

At first, none of us knew what to expect at our first session but the residents were eventually willing to open up and be real about their lives. It made sense because we were outsiders, but they made us feel welcome. No matter what they were going through though, the residents used their time either writing from their authentic self or telling us stories from their life. They gave their all to this experience. This vulnerability allowed us to see the world from a different point of view and create a community of different backgrounds.

We are very grateful for this opportunity and are proud of who the residents are. There are different walks of life in this world, but we have learned that we all have more in common than we think.

University of Dayton Cohort

P.S. Want to also thank Ms. B because she was so much more than a staff person but more so a friend to these girls. They looked out for her just as much as she looked out for them.
I am not proud
I feel I let my mother down
I never met my father
People never really knew me
They felt “why bother?” I know my smiles lit up the room
I know my jokes were funny to you
But at the end of the day none
Of it matters.
I tried
I tried to make myself beautiful
I wanted to be peaceful at my last moment
I hope I spent it with you
But hope never got me far

Those times I wish I could Have opened my eyes and Realized that all she wanted was the best for me. She always Told me to never put my thoughts
To rest, and never be the one To be treated less. Now my Time is almost up and I am
The one who gets Treated the worst. Now its Time to say goodbye to what I had Left behind. Mom I’m So sorry for you to see me like This. This my last trip I have in Mind.

Failure

If you fall pack your bags and never come back
If you fall you feel how it feels to feel hopeless
If you fall get back up and feel your success
If you think you might try your best and forget the rest.

My heart can't beat no more beats
I been stranded in a world with great regrets
I wish I could have handled my fate
But I am the devil's bait
I know I'm gonna be free but me remembering the rapes and the drugs
And I'll never forget all the hugs
And possibilities that came before me
But tonight you will see that I'm just as perfect as can be

Goodbye

JM

I'm sorry I'm leaving now
I wish I could of accomplished me being a legend
I'm sorry I'm leaving so soon
Please don't cry it's a full moon
But my time has come
But my time has come
But at least I left you with my words.
Leave me never forgotten
Don't keep me hidden in a staken

Peer Pressure

ML

Peer pressure is okay
I mean they only want to play
But sometimes they end up being your bae
Or not and they take advantage of you Then boom I learn that I am more than a piece of a
But more like a piece of class and my body is a temple Never nothing less

Peer pressure is classy as can be but listen to yourself
They only want you for your body
Nothing more nothing less
Then you realize you're more than just somebody lil hoe or something less You're a temple and your mind is tiny flashes of success

5: I miss my grandma
7: She is my home, heart, and soul
5: I love her, very much
If you hurt me I'll hurt you back
I remember the first time I felt rejection, it was something so painful that it gave me motivation, it gave me motivation to hurt you, even though I knew it was wrong, I made you cry, I made you feel pain and after learning better I felt worse for ever releasing agony no matter how bad I hurt.

Goodbye
KH

Never in my life would I think that I would say sorry
But I'm sorry mama I'm sorry for all the nights you had to stay up wondering about me
But it had to take me to leave that house of chaos to grow up and see me for me Talents I never knew about. The pain and the blame I let out.
I forgive those two men for hurting me but I don't think I can forget I'm gonna lay in my casket knowing I let go all my struggles and regrets.

My hands were told to be like Muhammad Ali's because of my size and the way I looked. I was taught to be more of a lover and not a fighter. I was told to wear my clothes more tight because of the way my body looked. I just wanted to fit in to what society wants me to be and look like but I cannot seem to be what everyone wants me to be because I am me!

I do not owe you what society wants me to be. I do not owe you an explanation of why my body looked the way it looks.
But today, this is the part I love the most... my beautiful chocolate skin. Every curve on my body. My heat damaged natural hair. Those are the parts I love the most.

My anger is like a burning tree with TNT underneath. It is ready to blow.
Life ain't worth the anger, always remember to have faith and hope.
My cries were told to be withheld.

Getting my head pushed to the dashboard while he drove.

Wasn't taught to say no and let my tears go.

I sucked them in and never let them go.

My emotions were between a brick wall, I wasn't bold enough to say no.

I thought he loved me, or that's what I was told?

My whole damn life I never let love show, because I was taught to never let emotions show. But I did and grew big.

Came over the fight and left a pig.

No man shall never beat me till I'm blue, I'm allowed to cry rather it's in front of you, you, or you.

Letting my screams out, just a big a shout. Learning new things as I chase old dreams. That wasn't taught to me.

How My Color Helped Me

Which me will survive?

I'm gay not Bi

I'm a woman

And I'm of color

Which me will survive.
I do not owe you an apology for my dark melanin skin,
The shape of my body are the places I been I love the skin that I'm in The Fro that I wear
But today I love this part the most I SEE me
I'm not hidden like a ghost
My skin is the biggest approach

I'm in love with music. I fell in love with music at 13. I watch my favorite artists do their shows for hours. I hang posters on my walls in every house I live in. I get every update on music every chance I can get.

I'm so passionate about music, I listen to type beats just to get an idea of what I want to write later. I read the dictionary to learn new meanings. I go to the thesaurus to find sentences of the word.

I can't wait to see my fans cry to see me. I can't wait to jump off stages into the crowd. I can't wait for people that have never met me in person, love my spirit.

I'm so passionate about music that I carry it with me everywhere.

I want people to feel everything I been through in one verse. I want people to know I'll always be there when they pick up their phone.
I do not owe you perfection
I know I am beautiful
Am I perfect is a great question
I try my best
I don't want no test

Because I do not owe you perfection

My passion is fixing things that are broken. It could be cars, children or teens, anything that falls between those lines. I would like to fix cars and find cars that nobody uses and fix them up. I would like to foster children any age because I was 5 ½ years old when the system took me from my parents. I would like to show them love and affection that no one has ever showed them before. I know how it feels to be misunderstood. And feel unwanted. I know the pain and the struggle that these kids been through maybe even more. Everyone needs somebody. Nobody should be alone no matter what circumstance.

Hey, I thought maybe you could teach me how to recognize the fake ones from the real ones or maybe how to say no when I'm being mislead from someone, damn I thought it would be easy to think about the things anglea didn't teach me. Oh but you taught me how to get or find a substance when st aint easy. Don't forget the big one rule. Never cry. If you're hurting inside go take a ride or go to Five Guys. I want to thank you for not showing me the things you should have showed me. I can teach myself and my unborn kids what is right but that's what I just taught myself

I thought you can teach me not to get into the streets and to make my own choices, that I really don’t have to do other people’s plans. I wanna make my own choices. I wanna do what makes me happy, I wanna live my kid life. I don’t want to be grown yet, I just wanna life life to succeed.

I thought you can teach me money don’t bring me happiness, that just cause you get treated like st don’t mean I have to treat people like st. I wanna teach myself how to love and how to be me. How to choose your own life, loyalty over everything for me. I don’t want to be the old me I wanna be a bigger me.

Hey, I thought maybe you could teach me how to rap without being off drugs, I thought maybe you could teach me hoe to be a Nascar driver, I thought maybe you could teach me how to be happy.

Hey, I thought maybe you could teach me how to stop running from all my problems, how to stop running to drugs, how to walk away. And if you already taught me how to see the world for what it is, how to not forget what happened as a kid, and to forgive, then you can teach me all the other things on my list.
I am passionate about starting my group home because I been in the system for almost 3 years and nobody ever listened to me about anything. I said and I want the kids to know I'm listening and I'm here for you and I won't leave you stranded like they left me. I want kids that have PTSD, trauma, or anything that they have I want to help them with everything and my group home will provide everything like therapy.
Dear reader,

After being remote all last year, we were finally able to be in person with the residents again! Every week when we arrived there were always residents willing to talk to us; not only willing, but excited. Some sessions had a lower energy than others because the residents were rather shy and reticent to talk the first time we met. Week after week though, they were able to open up and even share some of their work with us. This made us feel like we were there for a reason, like we were waiting to see them, and they were waiting to see us.

When we think about this cohort, we will remember all of the growth and smiles along the way. We will also remember all of the bonds we created with the residents, interacting with them at the tables and learning about their friends, families, and thoughts on the writing prompts. We were so glad that we had the opportunity to be a listening ear for them.

You should know that each resident has put themselves and their truth into these published pieces. There was a great deal of patience, critical thinking, and great conversations behind each contribution. Their work was created in a timely manner. Residents only have less than an hour to create an original piece. Because of this, the resident’s work is urgent, deserving of an outlet, and deserving of a listener. The residents loved the comedic writing and rapping workshops; they wanted to keep their writing lighthearted for the most part. If they did write about sensitive topics, it seemed to be expressed through rhyme and with a fun rhythm. A lot of our residents are also amazing artists and had a great time drawing what they were feeling, transforming the workshops to explore other forms of expression rather than writing.

After working with nearly every resident by the end, we saw all of their personalities and learned about their various passions. Through this, we were able to see who and what they truly cared about, and the impact these interests had on their life in and out of the detention center. Their writing serves as an outlet to express these feelings, and when you read their writing, you will see this too. We are most grateful for the face-to-face interactions that the resident’s shared with us, for their willingness to try something new, and for becoming part of their routine. Being able to come consistently allowed us to get to know the residents. Not only was a relationship established, but we are able to see our lessons sink in each week. To see their perseverance and drive to turn their lives around was truly inspiring. Their transparency and overall kindness have uplifted our spirits! The residents came from very different backgrounds, and we collectively shared our experiences to realize that we are really not that different. Everyone is struggling through their own battle, and writing allowed us to express this and connect to each other.

I was chilling at home listening to Youngboy like any other day. When I got a call from bro saying he was about to get jumped. I rushed over, adrenaline already pumping, knowing what’s about to go down. I hopped out of the car and dove straight in, starting with my lucky right hook on the first dude I see, he instantly falls to the street, clutching his jaw. Just then I read my surroundings, 4 guys total, 3 still pummeling my bro. I reach an adrenaline calm and rush the next guy I see, instantly knocking him out with a blow to the back of his head. That’s when they take in my presence and hesitate.
When I want to have a good time I call up some of my friends and ask what the move is, I'm just trying to do something! We all get in Marr's car and go to this girl's spring break party. We all roll up and there's like 30 people there already, we could hear the bass from down the block. We go in and know the cops are going to roll sooner or later, I walk around to say hey and get to having a good time and I'm having a good time, and I'm just chilling and I hear sirens, I get up to leave, and I get arrested that same day.

In the morning I helped my mom clean around the house and help clean the living room. Also, I have an adorable kitten named Angel Strips Dempsey, but I don't exactly like to clean the litter box. When I go outside, I either ride my bike with my friends or we jump on the trampoline together. The other thing is soon I will have my own vehicle to drive around my mom, or places to go or want to visit. But while I'm at home, I'm up in my bedroom watching "YouTube" on my TV and eating either pizza, Hot Pockets, or spaghetti, or grilled cheese sandwich with tomato soup and once I'm done, I grab my phone and earpods and go downstairs to do the dishes while listening to music and when I'm done, I watch TV and go to bed for the night!

I always like Fall best the smell of leaves as they turn from green to yellow and red the cool breeze while walking with friends the taste of pumpkin pie trick or treating of dusk the sound of screams and laughter as you walk through haunted houses skating through campus, vibing to music the parties that shake the block
I always like Summer and Fall
Best
You can wake up early and get ready for the day not knowing what you’re going to do with your friends, But always find a way to fulfill your summer at the end. Then, Fall you get a feeling of good vibes fun things to do just get a feeling you can’t explain.

Would you sacrifice everything to achieve happiness?
I am very exhausted in life.

I always like Fall best you have Halloween parties

the decorated houses, dogs roam free in the fields, pizza,
pumpkins, and subs
Fresh haircuts.
I always like summer best, the walking past 12 am, the warmness in the air, entertainment with friends sitting at the pier, listening to music, driving around.

Super Summer

I always like summer the best, you can always drink slushies from Circle K, lunch from Taco Bell and get stuff from Dollar Tree. While listening to dogs barking, birds chirping, and police sirens and all you smell is dinner, flowers, and trash on garbage day.

Fall Times

I always like Fall best. The smell of smoke and the sound of dogs makes me feel at home. I walk to GetGo and see a Junkie, he asks for a dollar to buy a Slim Jim. I see a cop, he says Hello. I go home and hear my mom, she’s yelling for my sister and I go to sleep.
I always like winter best because I get to hit people and friends with Ice balls and because it does not smell terrible and it is fun to play in the snow and get to help shovel the snow and get cars unstuck.

The officers watch as kids write, time ticks slowly, irritating me

Sitting on a cold seat as loud, broken heater hums films on the TV

Tasty chicken wings
The hot sauce dripping from chicken
Plus ranch, tastes so good

The cold air stabs every Individual hair on your neck.
Stale air leaves our unsatisfied breath. Then, all you can notice is the uncomfortable stillness.

The cold metal tables surround the room
many peoples’ voices fill the room.

Every day when I go to school, they see that my back is bruised, and I am too scared

The Story

I ran the streets like you wouldn't believe I did years of time by the time I was 17 Sitting back in the cold cell block wishing I never wrapped my hand around that glock.
Ever since then I've gone downhill.
I'm just glad I'm here now.
Given a chance to get my life together.
A chance to make my future better.
I dropped out twice, finishing was something I never thought I would do.
I got goals of things I want to do But seeing my son is at the top of the list.
I don't want him to see me in chains, so, I am going to take this opportunity to change to spare any pain.

I share her sorrow
there is a plane
In which I borrow
And take her on a flight to ease her feelings even though we were in a fight
I share with her my mother's teachings
We fly past hills
We see a cemetery
She tells me her friends overdosed on pills
She breaks down crying and I keep trying to ease her pain

People don’t understand
So, I feel frustrated parties with personality like me Bring me joy in school, teachers explain, but don’t understand frustration
Teachers that understand why you don’t understand Brings Joy
Staying in the house when you want to go crazy transition Outside all day Running alone Brings joy and so, it was a fail, but in here I get to see Mrs. Jarvis who gives me hope for my future

Your favorite shirt has a hole the feeling of never reaching your goal

Your car won’t start in the morn
You feel like you wanna punch the horn

Your favorite shirt still fits Setting one that you can hit

More time to relax and smile
Life’s short, make it Worth your while.

The smells of chicken and noodles, and rice, the loudness of all the humans, all the humans with friends and family, then to go home and fight with parents, after having joy in the restaurant to scream, and yell. Though it was over something dumb, and not worthy of frustration.
The End.

My grandma is candy
She’s sweet like candy
She means love
like heaven above
She means forgiveness
her heart has a certain toughness
She means talent
She is brilliant.
Hereditary Hardship

I keep trying to find her,
Keep trying to write her People wanna keep me away
I just want them out the way

I really want to ask somethings
Wish I was of age, so I could spread my wings
Need to ask her what I coulda done
Need to ask her what I shoulda done

She needs to know that I’m there
She needs to know that I’m here
And she really needs to know that I care
And she really needs to know that I’m here

I want you to know that I love you too
I hope I can tell you through the flows
I need you to know that it’s me and you.
I hope that you can tell you that I love you so.

Thinkin’ about my son and how we should be at home Sitting in Jail, I thought my heart was cold as stone but it isn’t and got me wishin’ I was out so, I could listen and watch my son cry and pout Sitting tucked away, I can’t help but think about all the time passing, quick as a wink Time moves fast, but he grows up faster
I wish I could get out now, instead of later I saw him twice for not long enough his little hand locked onto my finger Sitting with him in my arms, feeding him cheese puffs the love in my heart makes me want to forever linger She means safety almost like a key
She means home
down to my bone

She means love
like heaven above
She means forgiveness
She is like a goddess

I dream about Subway Melted mayo, turkey, and provolone, which I pray, toasted on a slice of wheat bread
All wrapped up into a sandwich of heaven, which I said

The warm aroma of toasted bread fills the air
As I rip the paper off the sandwich with a tear I pair my sub with an ice-cold root beer, it's so good it makes me shed a tear

My sauce is the boss it tastes like magic everybody else's is tragic the only thing he was good for was his spaghetti and then, he ran off with betty the plate was hot and he won't get another shot

Sometimes life puts you in a spin
Sometimes life lets you win Sometimes there is no we but you gotta Paul McCartney, let it be

I remember it like the day before last
So long ago, it goes by fast
It's okay I'll see you soon
Nothings gonna stop the rising of the moon

Sun yellow, like a bananas
The warmth call it Hannah Montana

She’s keeping all 7 kids.
She sells the ring.
She moves to California, San Francisco,
All she does is work to give all that she can to her kids.
She only has $5.60 to buy her Coffee to keep going.
All she smells is freedom from getting away.
She is always late to work at the coffee shop.

When I think of hard times, I remember my grandpa
He said he’s seen it all
He told me not to think about the bad That’s what makes me be glad
He told me one day it all gon’ be better
While I’m sitting in my cell, thinking about the weather
It’s like I’m in school waiting for the last bell
My grandpa said, one day, Imma come back from hell

There ain’t no pity in these streets. You don’t rat for free.
Don’t call me selfish, I ain’t do that stuff for me
Grew up with no pops
My momma, she could kick rocks me, my grandma, my brothers 3 too many mouths to feed I remember all those nights, hearing all those shots, grandma ain’t got the money, we just want to leave

Biscuits and gravy will make you go crazy cut it with a knife it will brighten your life put it in your mouth right now made at home

not a bowl of mush with a comb

Made at home
I’m not capping
Without a comb
you are clapping

I got the best biscuits and gravy you can’t touch ‘em I’m not last
When you’re with ‘em

If the world ended
The World is a big square
When I leave today could fall asleep
What if the Tree
I could whine
That would be corkingly divine!
When the big, fluffy wheezie decided to cry my mom will run away to China when she sees you But Garfield took my wallet
If I cried
There will be crickets tomorrow

That would be foul
What if the officer
I will wear a cat on my head
... and why did you just sneeze?

Dogs are amazing
Dolphins had a bottom half of human and top dolphin Why he so long.
Why he got so much energy.
The stop sign is Red Horseshoe pits are microscopic bugs
If the officers stopped being officers
They will fly away
What if I cried
I would die
That would be delicious
If the dog finds out about the poptart...
In 10 years, I will reincarnate
But the door is neither closed nor open.
If went cliff diving
Breakfast will be tasty
When my dog sleeps
Dog is great tomorrow!

No one lives from a Doggo Apocalypse
I don’t know what to write.

I see myself getting off Probation and focusing on school Focusing on myself and bettering everything in my life the freedom of it all scares me ‘cause I don’t want to get in trouble again.
When I achieve this, I see myself feeling a weight lifted off my shoulders a breath I’ve been holding released.
I see myself becoming a successful musician.
I am a musician
I got so much ambition
I got this new edition
I know that you’ll be listenin’.

What scares me is going out in the real world and messing up. Not having enough structure. My grandma can hold me accountable and make sure I’m giving myself structure.

If I see myself being scared because if I get on PB, Then, There is a more likely chance of me coming Back here.

What Scares me about my goal is that I won’t finish my classes on time. All my credits are only .5 when I need 7.75 more credits to 7.75 more credits to graduate by June 1st, so it scared me that I won’t be able to finish all my classes on time.
My life will be different because I’ll most likely move to a different state and I won’t have my mom by my side Constantly giving me constant reassurance and advice.
I see myself at a beach with my textbook out

I see myself being worried about taking risks to gain more money, but overcoming the fear because you need to take risks to make more money. My life will be more enjoyable when I meet my goal.
When I get out, I see myself listening to music because I feel good listening to music. Also, when I get out, I want to eat pizza.

I see myself cruising down the autobahn in my hot rod with my windows down, blasting my rock and roll pushin’ 170.

I see myself away from family in the U.S, and in Italy near the rest of my family in Venice and it’s sunny and they’re people out having fun and talking and partying as everyone watches fireworks.

The anticipation of my last cheer-day I put in my all, we were learning our moves, but I couldn’t keep up. I slipped and slid as the floor was still wet from the night before. Soon came the end, it was my last cheer-day.
The thing that scares me the most about accomplishing my goal is failure. Being able to go to college and being the first one in my family to go and some how messing it up scares me.

I see myself being a veterinarian. I'm scared of the taxes and the debt I'll be in. I'm also scared about who I'll be after if I'll be stuck up or not. I do not wanna be stuck up. I think I'll feel happy after I get out of school or college.

When I learned my first drop, I felt accomplished successful, and proud. I overcame my fear and completed the drop, then, perfected it. The silk burned, but I got used to the feeling and began trying harder to learn new tricks. I felt even more proud as classmates cheered me on and hugged me with each new thing I learned.

Finding skateboarding for the first time was so calming, being able to kick off a board and hearing the whooshing of the air around me as I kicked harder and harder to gain speed. Falling for the first time was one of the best feelings, I got right back up and went down a hill, going even faster, knowing I was probably going to fall or crash even harder than before and feeling the adrenaline through my blood and the stress setting in. Peaceful, not being able to see the world in detail, but blurry and fast, familiar.
My First Kickflip

1 I stood on my skateboard
2 I got in position
3 I bent my knees
4 I popped the back of the board
5 I slid my foot across the board 6 I caught my feet on the board
7 I landed on the ground
8 I got surprised 9 I stepped off the board
10 I had done my first kickflip

My first win

DK

I went up to the mat and got down on my knees. The kid got on top of me and was breathing in my ear. We wrestled until I pinned him. I had won. After all the grunting and sweating, I had finally beat this kid. This was my first win.

Championship

KT

In the 4th quarter, the last two minutes of the game, Carolina was down by 2 points in the NCAA Championship.
Jordan was passed the ball. As he flew down the court, dribbling the rock, he pulled up at the three and shot a wicked three-point shot, inducing the crowd to go wild. Without looking to see if he made his shot, he turned away, not wanting to look and see if he had made it or not in fear of missing the potentially game winning shot.
With the crowd going wild, and sweat pouring down his face, Jordan led the Carolina Tarheels to their first championship of Jordan’s career.

I dribbled down the court, cross-over after cross-over then, shot the rock, watching it go through the net. After, I threw my hands up in triumph as my team won the game. This win caused us to get into the championship.
