

4 REASONS FOR POOR ACADEMIC PERFORMANCE

1

LACK OF ORGANIZATION

In middle school, many students are able to get by without an organized workflow, but transitioning to high school presents a world of new challenges. Longer classes, demanding extra curriculars, and larger homework loads often leave students struggling to stay afloat academically. The antidote is creating an organized workflow that prioritizes academics.

2

MISSING SYSTEMS

The old assignment book from middle school leaves high schoolers ill equipped for the onslaught of academic demands they face. Achieving exceptional marks in all classes without sacrificing a student's personal life requires simple systems to ensure all obligations are met. Implementing proven time management and study systems improves academic performance.

POOR MINDSET

Not every student understands that academic success is more about effort and grit than it is about aptitude. In high school, everything is tracked from grades to extracurriculars, and most importantly, test scores. Aligning a student's mindset with the importance of their education will improve their focus and motivation in the classroom.

4

LOW COMPREHENSION

High school students are challenged with higher level reading, foreign languages, advanced mathematics, and more. Comprehending the fire hose of information and then retaining it for homework and tests presents an enormous challenge to many students. Leveraging proven tactics for studying and note taking dramatically improves comprehension and retention.

THE SOLUTION = ACADEMIC COACHING FROM METHOD LEARNING

Our Academic Coaches serve as advisors, mentors, and educational partners to your student, helping to remove performance blockers and improve scores. Here's how we do it:

1

ORGANIZATIONAL SYSTEMS

We develop and implement systems that support productive workflows and efficient time use.

2

DEEP LEARNING TACTICS

We maximize comprehension and retention with note taking and study habits that improve results.

3

MINDSET TRANSFORMATION

We remove focus and motivation barriers to maximize your students' full academic potential.

OUR COACHING PROCESS

Our Academic Coaches are highly trained to deliver a life changing experience for your student. In the first month of Academic Coaching, we follow a standardized process to acclimate students with their new academic operating system. Then, our coaches become extremely agile, catering sessions to student's specific needs and maximizing session time to drive results.

STUDENT OUTCOMES
