WEATHER & WATER CONDITIONS:

We operate between the Intracoastal waters of Indian Rocks Beach to Clearwater Beach and the Gulf of Mexico. The conditions on the waters are extremely dynamic and can affect your ride tremendously. Always consider the weather, and the tide for the projected day of the week you are booking a reservation.

In the event of inclement weather prior to departure, we offer the option for re-booking the reservation up to 1 year from the original reservation date and time or the option of a full refund as determined by our staff members. There are NO REFUNDS once the activity has started, NO EXCEPTIONS. If weather or water conditions become unsafe during a ride and we are forced to return to the dock early we may then and only then offer a partial refund or voucher to return and complete the remainder of the purchased ride. Wind speed and direction are always a factor in how smooth or choppy your ride may be. Most of the time, the sea breeze coming off the Gulf of Mexico later in the day can cause undesirable conditions. As a rule of thumb, we recommend booking earlier in the day. Checking the weather forecast and local tide charts can be a useful tool in determining a desirable time to book your reservation.

The tides can affect our destination and the ability to explore during our ride. High tide or the incoming tide is always preferable. During a high tide we can explore more hidden, scenic routes and some of our favorite locations. There is also less of a chance for you to run aground and damage the PWC during a high tide. Checking the tide charts is as easy as Googling "Local Tide Chart – Indian Rocks Beach or Clearwater Beach, FL"
