What was the thought process behind the Baby Shiba Inu smart contract? Why this contract over any other?

We wanted a solution that sustained the project with a high liquidity reroute and also benefitted holders with solid reflections as well as rewards. That's why we have created an extra tax to the giveaway wallet. In order to put more people at ease, the code was setup in a way that would allow easy and quick renunciation.

Is your team renouncing ownership? Explain why or why not, and how it would be beneficial.

Yes, it is renounced! We did that shortly after checking that everything would work. We preferred to put people at ease and to be clear that we were not going to scam anyone. We plan to gain enough tokens from reflections to be able to supply to exchanges in the future. We can build what we're willing to on top of the token without having ownership.

Does your team have experience within the DeFi environment? Are you prepared to run this project diligently?

We've all been through different DeFi projects in the last year, from managing to helping out with marketing and everything else. We felt experienced enough and have the tools at our disposal to do something good. We're flattered that so far, we're exceeding our own expectations!

Please explain your team's choices in distributing Baby Shiba Inu upon launch and how you believe it will be beneficial to the project.

The core team acquired a small portion of tokens at the beginning of the fair launch, certainly fair compared with the amount of work we have and will put into the project. We are motivated to hold and keep the ship going just as much as every other holder who joined us along the way.
