HOW THEY USED STRESSBALLS

CASE STUDY: 'LIVER BETTER LIFE' CAMPAIGN

Raising awareness is an intrinsic part of public health, discovering new and unique methods to help educate on health issues are vital to an effective campaign. Health organisations and charities have found this "damaged" liver to be a useful tool to demonstrate the dangers and effects of alcohol misuse. This squeezable liver has a smooth 'healthy' side which is printed with your strong message, the other side appears rough and discoloured to show the 'unhealthy' effects. Other health related campaigns where stress products have been used include lung & heart disease, breast & prostate cancer, drugs and healthy living... call us for more ideas on how to use stressballs as part of your campaign.

FOR YOUR COMPLETE PEACE OF MIND...

All our stressballs are guaranteed free from the harmful chemicals which are banned in all European manufacturing.

Stressballs help your sales staff response rate – these vibrant shapes provide a fun and relaxed talking point.

WHY ARE STRESSBALLS SO GOOD at making your business stand out from the rest?

A pen is a nice, gentle way to help with brand awareness, but if you want to make a BIG statement and stand out from your competition, a stressball printed with your corporate message or branding, is the strongest way to achieve an instant positive reaction. Competition at exhibitions can be very high, many exhibitors will be giving away branded pens, mugs and mousemats which generally get buried at the bottom of a bag. But with a stressball you can see people walking around the halls, squeezing your product, because it's tactile, comfortable and irresistible. This ensures your brand and message stays with them long after your introduction.

bright ideas...

The Transit Van

Everyone from drain cleaning to auto repair companies can use this. Any business that employs vans or delivers goods or mobile services can get their number and message printed on both sides as well as the roof - so 3 print possibilities!

HOW THEY USED STRESSBALLS

CASE STUDY: BEETLE INCLUDING PACKAGING

What leaves even more of an impression on customers than high quality stressballs? High quality stressballs in branded packaging. That's exactly what this customer wanted when they discovered we offer full colour printed bespoke boxes. This means that when it comes to getting the most out of your introduction to a potential new customer, the marketing message and brand identity is hugely increased. The stress product can be custom designed to your own shape, pantone coloured and printed with your logo and details. Packaging your stressball adds extra value to your marketing campaign by allowing you to reinforce your identity, include extra information, cross sell your products, while at the same time appear to be a retail product of considerable value.

Burt

Burt is a character we launched as a generic cartoon figure. Like the X man he stands up on the desk generating interest from passers-by in the office.

Rugby ball

These are great for up to 4 print positions. Lots of companies have sponsorship relationships with clubs, and it's always great to run a promotion when a major competition is on.

The Cube

Like the dice you have 6 print positions - the square face can give more size and flexibility for artwork layouts. Good for companies promoting a range of services, they can also be used to get messages across on in-house training days. Two sizes available - 50mm and 65mm.

The Lightbulb

This is hugely useful for creative industries (the lightbulb moment). Design companies, advertising agencies, software companies can all use this. Definitely a bright idea!

With our special flexible transfer prints you get pantone matched logos, multi colour printing, and prints that won't rub off!

HOW THEY USED STRESSBALLS

CASE STUDY: AN UNMAKEABLE SHAPE MAKEABLE!

Trying to explain what your business does so as not to lose the attention of your audience is a tricky skill. Trying to do this AND explain the benefits of your product, especially if new to the market is even trickier. That was the task for this company who had launched a highly intelligent submersible vehicle for use in the offshore oil & gas industry. An ROV (remotely operated vehicle) is often an aluminium cage with a buoyancy system attached to the top, inside the cage is all its necessary hydraulics, sensors, cables etc. To make a stress shape as an exact replica of this would not have been possible, but our full colour transfer printing and spray painting service made a very complex shape now do-able with great results. Being able to print fine detail within a tight registration was crucial to making this machine look more realistic. This hand held tactile product could now be used as a talking point to explain their story succinctly when face to face with customers.

Lead time for a special shape is approx 3 weeks – sometimes quicker!

IS YOUR PROMOTIONAL MERCHANDISE SAFE?

CASE STUDY: LITIGATION CONSCIOUS CORPORATIONS

When Warner Bros legal department in the U.S requested that they needed full disclosure on the content and ethical background of their promotional merchandise, their gift supplier approached us for help. Warner's had two problems. One was reliability of supply, they were buying on a regular basis for specific campaigns all across the US and goods were persistently arriving late. The second was that their legal department were concerned about scares involving pigments and plasticisers in Chinese products, and they couldn't get compliance certificates that they trusted. A certificate of compliance is fast becoming the hot "must have" in company legal departments across the world, where they require assurances from suppliers about minimal environmental impact, fair trade conditions and non toxic chemical content. Fortunately, all UK manufactured stressballs are free from E.U. banned chemicals. Life threatening cadmium and phthalates are absolutely forbidden in any European manufacturing. We are non toxic, non allergenic, are guaranteed no latex and do not contain ozone depleting CFC's.

UK made stressballs are manufactured under EU trade regulations and conform to EN71.

Certificates of Conformity are available on request
