

CANNABIS SECURITY CHECKLIST

Are the correct video surveillance procedures in place?

- Check the surveillance requirements for your jurisdiction and note any key points, procedural steps, or equipment that need to be in place based on the guidelines provided by your local authorities.

REGARDLESS OF YOUR JURISDICTION:

- Do you have the minimum camera resolution?

- Do you have the correct minimum frames per second?

- Is the system in use 24-7?

- How long can you store the footage?

- At least 90 days (this is a good place to start)
- 4 - 6 months (you're on the way to solid security)
- 6 - 9 months (well done)
- 9 months to a year (you're a rock star)
- One year + (this is the gold standard, good for you!)

- Does your system include the best monitoring option?

IS ACCESS CONTROL IN PLACE?

Access control systems protect cannabis businesses against inventory and profit losses. They also keep employees and customers safe. An access control system only allows authorized people to enter by using a key fob, card, or biometric.

REGARDLESS OF YOUR JURISDICTION:

- Can you ensure that only those who are authorized to be in the dispensary can enter the facility? Does your system track who enters using their credentials?

- Does your current system provide protection during the hours you are closed?

- Do you have an access control system plan to stop unauthorized access to a specific area of your dispensary, such as a warehouse where you store extra products?

- Do you have additional locks and access control in place for the storage area?

INTRUSION ALARMS:

- Do you have basic security systems in place, such as intrusion alarms that activate when you are not in the dispensary?
- The most common loss of revenue in the marijuana industry happens because of employee theft. Therefore, don't forget to include background checks of employees in your marijuana security plan.
- Do you maintain a visitor record or register?
