THE STORY UNFOLDS

Welcome to the first chapter of an exciting, adventurous and action-packed story. Welcome to Dōshi (Comrade).

On the coast of Japan, an abundance of species reside; most notably, the Doge and the Shiba Inu. These two, the greatest of the land, rose from poverty to become the leaders of their respective territories. They are able to take down anything that comes in their way with their unstoppable armies close behind.

The earliest believers who bet their livelihoods on the Doge and Shiba Inu clans rose from rags to richest themselves. Placing wagers on the lengthy duels these two factions involve themselves in, they too found immense success.

The rivalry between the Doge and Shiba is intense. Battles are long and hard fought. Both are strong. Both are wealthy. Both are successful. Neither can recall why they don't like each other. But, still, there is a deep and firey vengeance.

One day, very suddenly and unexpectedly, a tsunami hits the coast of Japan. This disaster inevitably eliminates many members of the armies following behind the Doge and the Shiba.

In the wake of the tsunami, both of these fierce leaders find themselves stranded, side by side. They each cling to their raft, with no choice but to rely on one another for survival.

After a period of silence they came together and, through their desperate confessions discover that they are related. Bonding over this, they decide to go on a quest together. With the remnants of the respective armies that they possess, the power to build one massive, unstoppable army is undeniable.

Together, Doge and Shiba has built a battalion, unlike no other, Dōshi, and they are on a questto find their lost family members.

The journey continues...

OVERVIEW

The Doshi project is the first of a multi chapter adventure storyline combining the two historic meme coins Doge and Shiba Inu. Doshi is all encompassing, providing a play to earn game, designed for users to play, experience, explore, and monetize their content with others who are not in the same physical space, powered by the Ethereum blockchain.

Meme & Dog Coins started back in 1976. An evolutionary biologist named Richard Dawkins coined the word 'meme' in his book. Dawkins defined a 'meme' as an idea, behavior, or style that spreads from person to person within a culture. Years later, the rise of the internet and the formation of a culture around it would see the phrase reappropriated to describe a piece of media, often humorous, that spreads virally.

The prolific nature of the internet meme was apparent by the year 2010, when a Japanese kindergarten teacher, Atsuko Sato, posted several images of her Shiba Inu dog, Kabosu, to her personal Tumblr blog. One image in particular featured Kabosu sitting on a couch while glaring sideways at the camera with raised eyebrows. By the year 2013, the image of Kabosu had gained both viral fame and the attention of IBM and Adobe software engineers, Billy Markus and Jackson Palmer. These engineers would use the image to become the face of their so called payment system.

Doge is widely regarded as the first 'dog coin.' Dogecoin remained dormant until the year 2020, when it skyrocketed after supporters on TikTok and Reddit forced it into the mainstream spotlight, and aided by Elon Musk, of course. Shiba Inu quickly galvanized communities around blockchain technology and inspired some of the most popular non-fungible token collections, paving the path for blockchain to become a key component of metaverse implementations.
