Homestake Opera House was a 1,000 seat theatre built in 1914 by the Homestake Gold Mine as a gift to the community from the miner owner, Phoebe Apperson Hearst. The building also housed a library, heated swimming pool, billiards hall, and bowling alley.

In 1984, the theatre suffered a devastating fire that nearly demolished the theatre. After a long period of vacancy, work has been started to restore the building back to its original grandeur.

Today, the theatre seats 466 and is host to concerts, theatre, events, and presentations that take place year round. The uniqueness of building in the middle of restoration provides the opportunity to reminisce the past absorb the present and imagine the future beauty of this amazing facility.

The building boasts a rich history and colorful future!
The lobby gives the first impression of grandeur with a large, grand staircase.

The theatre seats 466 with the floor seats and balcony. The tall proscenium arch provides the feeling of grand opulence. The stage & backstage allows for plenty of space for a variety of performances.
