Who can use the University of London Housing Services?

The University of London Housing Services (ULHS) offers advice and support for those living in private rented accommodation. The service is available to students at subscribing Colleges and Universities, as well as central University of London staff.

An up-to-date list of Colleges and Universities that subscribe to the ULHS can be found at: https://housing.london.ac.uk/about-us/member-institutions

Why produce a list of alternative advice centres?

Unfortunately, the ULHS is unable to offer advice to everyone who requests it. This might be due to high demand for the service, ineligibility to use the service or the problem on which advice is being sought falling outside of our remit.

We are unable to offer advice to certain people, including:

- Landlords
- Homeowners
- Service users who are in conflict with another service user. For example, situations where providing advice to you might disadvantage another student who is also entitled to use our service.

This booklet of alternative advice centres will let you know about other places where you may be able to get help and answers to your questions.

King’s College London Legal Clinic & Mediation Service

What services are provided?
King’s Legal Clinic (KLC) offers two services of particular interest to students with housing problems. All their services are open to any member of the public, so you do not have to be a student at Kings to use them.

- A free legal advice clinic for housing problems, open to the public. The service does not deal with emergencies.

- A completely free, confidential mediation service, also open to the public. The service offers a neutral environment where people who are in a dispute with a neighbour or a fellow flatmate, for example, can discuss the situation and work towards a solution together.

Drop-ins are not available. To book an appointment either complete the online booking form, call the office or email the team.

Appointment opening times (subject to change):

Local Authorities / Councils

What services are provided?
Many Councils provide housing advice to private tenants. They can sometimes intervene in situations where landlords have failed to do repairs, or are harassing you. Once you find out which council you need to speak to, try asking for the ‘Private Rented Housing Team’, or the ‘Housing Environmental Health Team’, or ‘Tenancy Relations’. The name of the right team is sometimes different in each council.

Find your local Council here: www.gov.uk/find-your-local-council
Renters’ Unions

London Renters’ Union

What services are provided?
If you are struggling with a housing issue, there is a high likelihood that there are other people in London who are in the same situation. LRU’s members leverage the power of collective action to effect real change for tenants in London. If you have had a bad experience that you’d like others to be spared, or would like to improve the experience of renting in London more generally, consider joining LRU to work with other people toward make these aspirations a reality.
