CanPR is a step-by-step guide for Canadian Immigration. The app offers Canadian Immigration advice obtained through years of personal experience and enhances a potential applicant's journey to Canada through handy tools, helpful tips and invaluable recommendations.

CanPR collects and stores user data in order to create a step-by-step process personable just for users. Alongside CanPR, third-party applications also receive your personal data in order to help us conduct the best pathway for users of the application. All in all, the data collected will only be used by us or our third-party applications.

Our Policy

Personal and immigration related data is collected for us to find the best possible guide for you to immigrate to Canada legally. This process starts with questions and inputting data into our system (the application), which then the application can generate a step-by-step guide to be followed. Use this guide to complete all the steps and submit any paperwork for which you are required.

The personal data that is required is:

- Full name
- Age
- Gender
- Current Address
- Marital Status

CanPR also asks personal questions about user' immigration journeys to in order to conduct the step-by-step immigration guide.

The questions asked about immigration are:

- “What visa would you like to apply for?”
- “Have you ever created an Express Entry profile before?”
- “How proficient are you in English or French?”

If users have any questions or concerns, users can contact our call centre or postal code for any CanPR needs.

Our Promise/Commitment to Privacy:

We promise a commitment to privacy through our private policy which protects all user information which is imputed into our application and/or shared to our call-centre.
