

I Hope It Doesn't Turn Out To Be A Hot Time In The Old Town Tonight

Hey America, President Obama, and The US Supreme Court:

We in the construction trade use a lot of power tools which are primarily electric. When I was young, and first started as a carpenter these tools were almost completely powered with AC current, so that demanded that they be plugged into a regular AC socket. Whether it was a skill saw, a drill, a rotor hammer, sander, table saw, you name it, years ago they all had cords. Howbeit anymore it is very common that these same tools are now available in cordless models, and I'm telling you sometimes that is very handy. The cordless drill has become an exceedingly common small power tool, and I suppose that just about every household in America has one. My hat is off to whoever came up with cordless tools. I like em!!

As a lead man on many construction sites and a small-time contractor for many years it became my duty to introduce many new hands to the use of power tools. Some of these guys were very green, not hardly knowing dittle about construction or the tools involved in the trade. I mean with some of them you really had to start at the very beginning, at construction level 101, which included showing them how power tools and cords were designed to work and to be handled. From time to time, I had to have conversations that went something like this, "This Mr. Construction Worker (whom we'll go ahead and call Mr. Newbie) is a power cord, we use cords like this to power all our tools. Without these we get just about nothing done, they are very important to us and must be cared for and maintained. Oh, by the way Mr. Newbie, this is the male end of the cord, and this is the female end of the cord. You need to notice how intelligent design allows for the one end of the cord to fit into the other end so that with the connection power can flow from the one into the other."

I know ladies and gentlemen it may sound a bit risqué, but that is how power cords work.

Yes, I have had those kinds of discussions thorough the years with various Mr. Newbies who would come on to the job site. Pretty basic stuff, eh?

Sad day in America when our President, our Supreme Court, and the governments of numerous states have such little brain power that they do not possess the bit of basic sense that our construction newbies were required to possess to be an entrance level construction grunt.

Apparently, President Obama, our Supreme Court Justices, and a whole lot of people around the country would starve to death if they had to use power tools to make their living. I can see them in my mind's eye standing there trying to connect two male cord ends, or two female cord ends together, "Dog-gone stupid power cord, why won't you fit together? At this rate, I'll never get this job done." Imagine that, we've got a man in the White House who apparently cannot even compete with the Never seemed that complicated to me. You know, the one style fits into the other style, and then step back and let life happens! But then I guess I'm just a construction worker, I can't be expected to understand the deeper points of the "birds and bees".

savvy of a new construction grunt when it comes to figuring out the basic “birds and bees” of power cords. Makes me wonder if he understands where children come from! Sad day in America, very sad day!

Gay Rights they call them. That's where perverted people, (presidents, supreme court justices, right on down to the rank and file in America) demand that they be given every civil recognition, acceptance, and the blessing of legal standing so that they can parade their perversion in the very face of God Almighty, and all of mankind.

An “alternative lifestyle” it’s called now a days

Well, I have to admit the idea and practice has been around for quite a while. The Apostle Paul devoted nearly a complete chapter in the Biblical book of Romans concerning those that “just happen” to be “wired that way”. You know, two male cord ends getting it on, or two female cord ends trying to fit together. You know what, I just had an idea. I wonder how long our modern home improvement stores could stay in business if they started selling “gay power cords”? You know, cords that have two male ends on them, or two female ends on them instead of the “old fashioned”, “puritanical” regular ones that are designed and created with intelligence so that the cord ends fit into each other and allow for proper functioning.

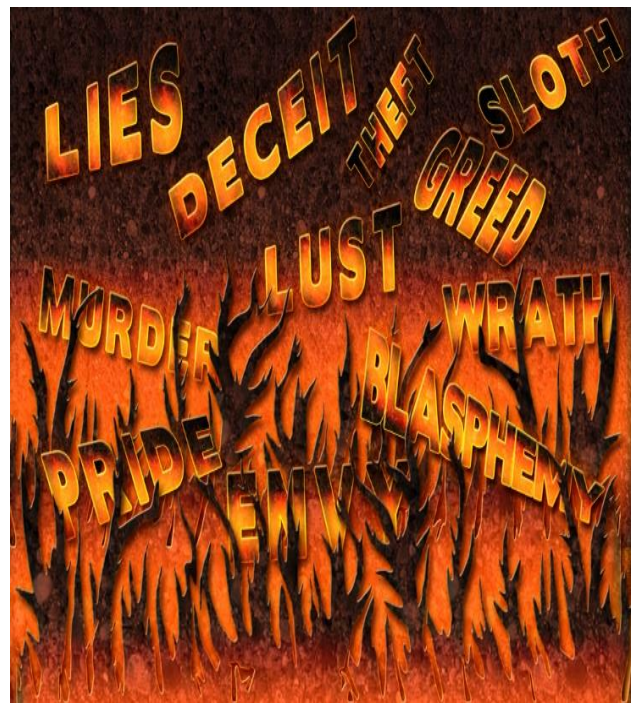

Also, in the Biblical book of Genesis the story is told of five cities who were “champions of the Gay Rights Movement” in their day.

The two most famous of these cities were Sodom and Gomorrah. In fact, they got so good at their craft that YeHoVah’ sent a couple angels down to check them out. You know, to find out just how advanced they really were at being “Gay Rights” activists and performers. They must have been pretty good, for the very next day YeHoVah’ sent them a bit of a “thunderstorm” and it “rained” fire and brimstone down upon them. By the way, brimstone is the old-fashioned term for sulfur, which burns, as I understand it at about 4700 degrees Fahrenheit. Hot enough that if you light it on a metal spoon it will burn its way right through the spoon. Pretty hot I'd say! Anyway, when that “rainstorm” was done there was nothing left of those five cities except smoking ashes. There were zero “Gay Activists” remaining there.

Hmmmm, such a deal! Doesn't sound like being a “gay activist” would prove to be a very healthy or profitable business to be in if YeHoVah’ is around. Apparently, He doesn't approve of the “gay rights” movement. Apparently, His government isn't a democracy where the perverted can elect foolish and wicked public officials to pass ungodly laws that “legalize” their perversion.

America: Particularly Mr. President Obama, Supreme Court Justices, and all the others of you who promote the perversion of homosexuality, may I suggest to you that all you are really doing is sticking up your middle finger in the face of God Almighty, and by your actions saying, “Up Your's”, I'll do what I want to do, and I don't care what you think”.

Well remember this America. I am warning you! There are some neighborhood barbecue parties going to be happening around the country, and the Almighty will be showing up with the brimstone, and when the barbecues are done there isn't going to be anything left but ashes. Then we'll see who is sticking up their middle finger in YeHoVah's face and challenging Him. We'll see who is left standing when the smoke clears. I believe I can promise you that it will not be the “Gay Activists.” They sure won't be very gay when that barbecue party is over. Crispy critters, that's what they'll be.

Coming soon to a city near you, in fact it might be your own!

America: If we are so stupid and foolish to think that the Almighty will wink that this perversion and tolerate it being held in His face, then we are in my opinion, very stupid and naive.

America, I highly suggest we get down on our knees and cry out for mercy before the “fireworks” begin. For they are coming. I tell you, if we do not turn from our mocking of everything holy, especially as is illustrated in the acceptance and promotion of sodomy, then YeHoVah’ will surely back hand us and we will be knocked to the ground and many into the judgment of eternal damnation. And while we are repenting, we had better flush a goodly number of our public officials who are continually working to corrupt our laws, starting with our President, members of our Supreme Court, right on down.

The choice is yours America, you can turn from your wickedness, or you can be destroyed.
