

I'm not robot  reCAPTCHA

I am not robot!

Lake van monster

Who are you cryptic? Click to take the test. The Lake Van Monster is a cryptid that can be seen in Lake Van south of Mount Ararat in eastern Turkey. ~~zurez~~ Some of the most famous sightings of this recorded took place in 1995-1997. In the year, but the first sighting was registered in 1889. Not far from Lake Van, the largest lake in Turkey. Its Turkish name is Van Gölü Canavar. Over a thousand witnesses are believed to have seen Lake Van Monster. The monster is said to resemble ancient marine reptiles such as the plesioiuro, which also bears similarities to the famous Loch Ness monster.

Over a thousand witnesses are believed to have seen Lake Van Monster. The monster is said to resemble ancient marine reptiles such as the plesioiuro, which also bears similarities to the famous Loch Ness monster. Sightings have been reported worldwide since 1995. 2 November Daily Telegraph but some research shows that this creature has been seen before. The short Vano Monster Lake video may have been filmed in 1997 by Unal Kozak, an assistant professor at the University of Van. This controversial video confused researchers when it came to identifying the creature in the video. Some claim to have seen the beak; Others seem convinced it's nothing more than a swimming elephant (although elephants don't live by the lake), and skeptics want to see nothing more than a pile of garbage bags that have been watered down deep. The film was shown on CNN in 1997 in the late 1800s and has since become the center of a storm of cryptozoological controversy. The Turkish scientific community cannot explain the identity and origin of the animal, and Orhan Erman, professor of biology at Ataturus University, claims that there is nothing like the Lake Van monster that can live in the lake. "After" being the size we saw, you just couldn't live in an enclosed lake like a van. " Like Van, it's a lake of soda, so no one can live here. ~~refukehix~~ Possible explanations for these sightings include ancient creatures like Plesa or Mosaur, or even squid, which some have never confirmed.B'welche crypt? Click here to take the quiz. The Van-See Monster is a crypt that can be seen in Van-See south of Mount Ararat in eastern Turkey.

Some of the most famous sightings of this recorded took place in 1995-1997. In the year, but the first sighting was registered in 1889. Not far from Lake Van, the largest lake in Turkey. Its Turkish name is Van Gölü Canavar. Over a thousand witnesses are believed to have seen Lake Van Monster. The monster is said to resemble ancient marine reptiles such as the plesioiuro, which also bears similarities to the famous Loch Ness monster. ~~revikupi~~ Sightings have been reported worldwide since 1995. 2 November Daily Telegraph but some research shows that this creature has been seen before. ~~yuyuxabinujaha~~ The short Vano Monster Lake video may have been filmed in 1997 by Unal Kozak, an assistant professor at the University of Van. This controversial video confused researchers when it came to identifying the creature in the video. Some claim to have seen the beak; Others seem convinced it's nothing more than a swimming elephant (although elephants don't live by the lake), and skeptics want to see nothing more than a pile of garbage bags that have been watered down deep. The film was shown on CNN in 1997 in the late 1800s and has since become the center of a storm of cryptozoological controversy. The Turkish scientific community cannot explain the identity and origin of the animal, and Orhan Erman, professor of biology at Ataturus University, claims that there is nothing like the Lake Van monster that can live in the lake. "After" being the size we saw, you just couldn't live in an enclosed lake like a van. " Like Van, it's a lake of soda, so no one can live here. Possible explanations for these sightings include ancient creatures like Plesa or Mosaur, or even squid, which some have never confirmed.B'welche crypt? Click here to take the quiz. ~~ladatacavoike~~ The Van-See Monster is a crypt that can be seen in Van-See south of Mount Ararat in eastern Turkey. Some of the most famous documented images took place in 1995-1997. In the year, but the first sighting was recorded in 1889. Not far from Lake Van, the largest lake in Turkey. His Turkish name is van g \ xc3 \ xbd1 \ xc3 \ xbc wolsar \ xc4 \ xb1. Van Monster Lake is said to have been seen by more than a thousand witnesses. The monster is based on ancient marine reptiles, such as the plesiosaur, which also shares properties with the famous Locho Nesso monster. Since November 2, 1995, the Daily Telegraph article has been reported internationally, but some examinations show that the creature was already visible by this time. Short Possible Van-See Monster 1997 Video Photographed by a 26-year-old teaching assistant at Van Unal Kozak University. This controversial video confused researchers about how to identify the creature in the film. Some claim to have seen the beak; Others are convinced that there is nothing more than a floating elephant (even if elephants do not live near the lake) and skeptics refuse, except for "a bag of garbage that got dragged into the deep waters of the lake." ; 1997 in the late 19th century, the film was broadcast on CNN and has since become the center of a violent cryptocurrency controversy. The Turkish scientific community has been puzzled over the animal's identity and origin, and Orhan Erman, a professor of biology at Ataturk University, says there is nothing related to the lake-like Van Van monster, explaining: "It's just no. "It's possible that the living witnesses the being who witnesses the remainder lives as a pickup truck. "Just as Van is a lake of punishment, no one can live there. Possible explanations for the sightings include ancient creatures such as plesior or mosaurus, and even squid, such as some believe to be a prerequisiteThe fish that is known to live in the healthy waters of the lake is Chalcalburnus Tarichi (Pearl Mule), the Cypriot fish related to Chevesne and Natral.

Over a thousand witnesses are believed to have seen Lake Van Monster. The monster is said to resemble ancient marine reptiles such as the plesioiuro, which also bears similarities to the famous Loch Ness monster. Sightings have been reported worldwide since 1995. 2 November Daily Telegraph but some research shows that this creature has been seen before. The short Vano Monster Lake video may have been filmed in 1997 by Unal Kozak, an assistant professor at the University of Van. This controversial video confused researchers when it came to identifying the creature in the video. Some claim to have seen the beak; Others seem convinced it's nothing more than a swimming elephant (although elephants don't live by the lake), and skeptics want to see nothing more than a pile of garbage bags that have been watered down deep. The film was shown on CNN in 1997 in the late 1800s and has since become the center of a storm of cryptozoological controversy. The Turkish scientific community cannot explain the identity and origin of the animal, and Orhan Erman, professor of biology at Ataturus University, claims that there is nothing like the Lake Van monster that can live in the lake. "After" being the size we saw, you just couldn't live in an enclosed lake like a van. " Like Van, it's a lake of soda, so no one can live here. Possible explanations for these sightings include ancient creatures like Plesa or Mosaur, or even squid, which some have never confirmed.B'welche crypt? Click here to take the quiz.

2 November Daily Telegraph but some research shows that this creature has been seen before. The short Vano Monster Lake video may have been filmed in 1997 by Unal Kozak, an assistant professor at the University of Van. This controversial video confused researchers when it came to identifying the creature in the video. Some claim to have seen the beak; Others seem convinced it's nothing more than a swimming elephant (although elephants don't live by the lake), and skeptics want to see nothing more than a pile of garbage bags that have been watered down deep. The film was shown on CNN in 1997 in the late 1800s and has since become the center of a storm of cryptozoological controversy. The Turkish scientific community cannot explain the identity and origin of the animal, and Orhan Erman, professor of biology at Ataturus University, claims that there is nothing like the Lake Van monster that can live in the lake. "After" being the size we saw, you just couldn't live in an enclosed lake like a van. " Like Van, it's a lake of soda, so no one can live here. Possible explanations for these sightings include ancient creatures like Plesa or Mosaur, or even squid, which some have never confirmed.B'welche crypt? Click here to take the quiz.

The alleged monster and its possible eye (wtn)

Not far from Lake Van, the largest lake in Turkey. Its Turkish name is Van Gölü Canavar. Over a thousand witnesses are believed to have seen Lake Van Monster. The monster is said to resemble ancient marine reptiles such as the plesioiuro, which also bears similarities to the famous Loch Ness monster. Sightings have been reported worldwide since 1995. 2 November Daily Telegraph but some research shows that this creature has been seen before. The short Vano Monster Lake video may have been filmed in 1997 by Unal Kozak, an assistant professor at the University of Van. This controversial video confused researchers when it came to identifying the creature in the video. Some claim to have seen the beak; Others seem convinced it's nothing more than a swimming elephant (although elephants don't live by the lake), and skeptics want to see nothing more than a pile of garbage bags that have been watered down deep. The film was shown on CNN in 1997 in the late 1800s and has since become the center of a storm of cryptozoological controversy. The Turkish scientific community cannot explain the identity and origin of the animal, and Orhan Erman, professor of biology at Ataturus University, claims that there is nothing like the Lake Van monster that can live in the lake.

"After" being the size we saw, you just couldn't live in an enclosed lake like a van. Possible explanations for these sightings include ancient creatures like Plesa or Mosaur, or even squid, which some have never confirmed.B'welche crypt? Click here to take the quiz. The Van-See Monster is a crypt that can be seen in Van-See south of Mount Ararat in eastern Turkey. Some of the most famous documented images took place in 1995-1997. In the year, but the first sighting was recorded in 1889. Not far from Lake Van, the largest lake in Turkey. His Turkish name is van g \ xc3 \ xbd1 \ xc3 \ xbc wolsar \ xc4 \ xb1. Van Monster Lake is said to have been seen by more than a thousand witnesses. The monster is based on ancient marine reptiles, such as the plesiosaur, which also shares properties with the famous Locho Nesso monster. Since November 2, 1995, the Daily Telegraph article has been reported internationally, but some examinations show that the creature was already visible by this time. Short Possible Van-See Monster 1997 Video Photographed by a 26-year-old teaching assistant at Van Unal Kozak University. This controversial video confused researchers about how to identify the creature in the film. Some claim to have seen the beak; Others are convinced that there is nothing more than a floating elephant (even if elephants do not live near the lake) and skeptics refuse, except for "a bag of garbage that got dragged into the deep waters of the lake." ; 1997 in the late 19th century, the film was broadcast on CNN and has since become the center of a violent cryptocurrency controversy. The Turkish scientific community has been puzzled over the animal's identity and origin, and Orhan Erman, a professor of biology at Ataturk University, says there is nothing related to the lake-like Van Van monster, explaining: "It's just no. "It's possible that the living witnesses the being who witnesses the remainder lives as a pickup truck. "Just as Van is a lake of punishment, no one can live there. Possible explanations for the sightings include ancient creatures such as plesior or mosaurus, and even squid, such as some believe to be a prerequisiteThe fish that is known to live in the healthy waters of the lake is Chalcalburnus Tarichi (Pearl Mule), the Cypriot fish related to Chevesne and Natral. In the lake was identified 103 species of phytoplankton and 36 species of zooplankton. Also in 2012 endemic diversity of worms was discovered. The article was published in a newspaper called Saadet News in the Ottoman era in 1889. Travelers said they were camping at the lake and wanted to wash their hands with lake water. When they were washing, a great creature quickly appeared in the water and attacked them. He grabbed one of three behind his leg and tried to train him in the lake. The other two tried to save their friends, but their strength was not enough to save him because the creature was too strong. Then they chose the fire in their camp and lit fire for creation. When the fire touched the creation, he screamed with extreme pain in the ears and hit the depths of the lake and took the man in. A captured person will never be found. This is the oldest documented description of Lake van Monster, but contains some reflections on previous links. On Akdamar Island, which is the largest island in Lake Van, the Armamar church, composed of the church church, consists of Akdamar church. The outer walls of the church are covered with stone images. The image clearly shows the creature resembling a monster under the ship. Many people think this image is related to van Monster Lake. If this image applies to the Van Monster lake, it means that it is known for more than a thousand years. Possible explanation [] This species is probably part of what I call "Lizard lizard", a family related to large semi -arites or completely water plasians found in a creekVan lake monster on target ferd. Season 3 Episode 305 "Alien Mummies/Monster from Lake Van". - In the Secret Saturday episode, Unsinging Eye, a monster like creature appears as the maker of Mosa. - Lake Van Monster is a semi-public apex predator in Ark: Advanced Survival Mod Paranoia. Gallery [] Monster Statuette on Lake Van Gevash / Van District illustration Monster from Lake Van creature image found by archaeologists in a castle buried deep under the lake in Turkey. The lake is the second largest in the Middle East, and researchers from Turkey picked up Van Yozak. Takhin Jaylan, project manager for the project, first came to Lake Van in search of the Lake Van Monster, which is rumored to look like the Scottish Lollipop Monster. "They say there might be something under the water, but most of the archaeologists and museum staff told us we would find something." Ceylon told The Daily newspaper. Stretching nearly a mile, the castle is about 14 feet tall and is perfectly preserved thanks to the lake's alkaline water. Scientists believe that these are relics of the Urartu civilization, also known as the Kingdom of Van, which flourished from the 19th to the 6th centuries BC. Cr. The old castle isn't the first piece of history to hide Van Lake. in 2016 The team also discovered the Stalagmite Field, a two-square-kilometer area known as underwater magic chimneys. They also found 1,000-year-old tombstones from the Seljuk era and, in 1948, January - crude Russian ship with crude oil. Many civilizations and people have settled around Lake Van, Jaylan Hurriyet told Daily News. They called the lake "the upper sea" and believed that it contained many mysteries. Remembering this faith, we work to reveal the secrets of the lake.