El Pollo Loco, founded by Juan Francisco Ochoa in Guasave, Mexico back in 1975, has come a long way since its first US restaurant opened in Los Angeles in 1980. Today, the chain boasts over 500 locations across the United States as of 2019. The company went public in 1993 and later got acquired by Apollo Global Management in 2007. When it comes to their menu, El Pollo Loco is renowned for its chicken dishes that undergo a 12-hour marinating process with their secret blend of herbs and spices before being grilled over an open flame. Apart from their signature chicken items, they also offer burritos, tacos, salads, and quesadillas. To save some cash at El Pollo Loco, try these tips: opt for the 2-piece chicken combo instead of the 3-piece one; share a platter with a friend or family member; or go for the 8-piece family pack instead of buying individual meals. Some fun facts about El Pollo Loco include that "El Pollo Loco" literally translates to "The Crazy Chicken" in Spanish, and their name has stuck ever since.
