Miss France 2025 was held at Futuroscope Arena in Vienne, Nouvelle-Aquitaine on December 14, 2024. The pageant saw Anglique Angarni-Filopon from Martinique being crowned as the winner by Eve Gilles of Nord-Pas-de-Calais. This edition marked a change in leadership with Frdric Gilbert taking over after Alexia Laroche-Joubert's resignation following Miss France 2024, and it was also Cindy Fabre's last event with the organization. Jean Bodart, the mayor of Dunkirk, had initially expressed interest in hosting the event, which is customary for the reigning titleholder's hometown. The pageant will be held at Futuroscope Arena for the third time, having previously hosted Miss France 2007 and Miss France 1997. The overseas trip for delegates was announced to be Cte d'Ivoire, where they would participate in various events before returning to France for rehearsals. Thirty contestants were selected through regional pageants held between June and October 2024. This edition saw the return of Saint Martin and Saint Barthlemy competing on a biennial basis, but New Caledonia withdrew due to ongoing political unrest. The top placements included Anglique Angarni-Filopon from Martinique as Miss France 2025, Sabah Ab from Nord-Pas-de-Calais as 1st Runner-Up, Stella Vangioni from Corsica as 2nd Runner-Up, and Mora Andr from Guadeloupe as 3rd Runner-Up. The top 15 contestants included Isabella Hebert from Alsace, Laura Marque from Aquitaine, Clara Diry from Burgundy, and others. Various prizes were awarded during the pageant, including the General Culture Award to Marina Przadka from Picardy with a score of 15.5/20, the Best Regional Costume to Julie Dupont from le-de-France, and the Camaraderie Award also to Julie Dupont from le-de-France. Twenty-five female contestants, including Isabella Hebert from Alsace and Cristina Crdula as a fashion consultant, competed for the Miss France title on various themes such as dance and music-inspired competition rounds. The Top 15 was selected through a combined jury and public vote, with five delegates advancing to the final top five. Martinique, Guadeloupe, Corsica, Nord-Pas-de-Calais, and Cte d'Azur made up the top five, with Martinique ultimately declared Miss France due to a 50/50 split vote that favored the public's preference in case of a tie.
