

I'm not a robot

Pursuing something unrealistic or impossible. Beware: spoilers follow for today's Strands puzzle. We're about to give away the answers to today's Strands puzzle. What's the spangram in today's Strands? Today's spangram is CHASINGRAINBOWS. What are the theme words in today's Strands? The theme words today are ORANGE, YELLOW, INDIGO, BLUE, VIOLET, GREEN. Here's what the board looks like when the puzzle is solved: Credit: Strands/NYT How I solved today's Strands My guess is that today's puzzle will feature shades of yellow. I see the word YELLOW along the right edge. Wait, and it's highlighted in yellow? But it's not the spangram? Huh. ORANGE is above YELLOW, and it's highlighted in orange! This has never happened before. I love it. INDIGO is below orange. I guess we're doing the rainbow today. ☐ (I don't have an indigo emoji, so we're doing red.) VIOLET is in the bottom right corner. ☐ BLUE is in the center of the puzzle. ☐ I see the word RAINBOWS, but it doesn't touch the edges of the puzzle. Oh, I bet it's CHASINGRAINBOWS. ☐☐ A Pride month puzzle! Lastly, GREEN. Strands #483 "Hue are my sunshine" ☐☐☐☐ ☐☐☐☐ How to play Strands You can find the Strands game on the New York Times website and in the NYT Games app. When you start playing, you'll see a game board with an assortment of letters, flanked by a clue that gives a hint at the board's theme—this will be a phrase, like "Better with age." Your job is to find the hidden words within the board that reflect the puzzle's theme. A crossword crossed with a word search! The most important word to find is the spangram, a word that more explicitly states the puzzle's theme. (For example, the spangram for the puzzle with the theme "Better with age" is FERMENTED, which describes products that are, you guessed it, better with age.) The spangram will span the entire game board, either from left to right or top to bottom (hence the name). When you find the spangram, it will be highlighted in yellow. Solving the spangram usually makes the rest of the puzzle much easier to complete. In Strands, words can travel any direction—up, down, left, right, and diagonal—and you will only use each letter once. There is only one correct solution. When you correctly identify one of the puzzle's words—for example, KOMBUCHA, MISO, or KIMCHI—it will be highlighted in blue. If you are struggling to solve the puzzle, you can submit any non-theme words you see—as long as they are four letters or more—to receive credit toward a single hint. If you submit three non-theme words, the "Hint" button will be clickable; if you click it, all of the letters in one of the theme words will be highlighted for you. You will still have to link these highlighted letters in the right order to form one of the theme words. If there is already a hint on the board and you use another hint before solving for that word, that word's letter order will be revealed. How to win Strands Unlike Connections and Wordle, you cannot fail Strands. When you submit guesses, you will either correctly identify an answer, receive credit toward a hint, or the text will shake back and forth, indicating that the word you submitted is too short or not valid. You can't run out of guesses, and there is no time limit. You win when you've correctly used all the letters on the board, meaning that you have identified the spangram and all of the theme words. Like other NYT games, upon solving the puzzle, you will see a shareable card that indicates how you performed that day: blue dots indicate theme words you found, the yellow dot indicates when you found the spangram, and a lightbulb indicates words that you received a hint for. Not the day you're after? Here's the solution to yesterday's Strands. Credit: Ian Moore / James Martin / Viva Tung / Mashable Composite Strands: A Word Association Game That Challenges Your Vocabulary and Creativity The NYT Strands game offers a unique word association experience that tests your vocabulary and creativity.
